URGE WHITE WAY FOR SAN FERNANDO

Improvement Association Appeals to City Council for Cluster Lights

WOULD PAY SHARE

Propose Most Attractive Thoroughfare in All of Glendale

San Fernando boulevard from Brand boulevard to Broadway will soon be converted into a great white way, if the plans of the San Fernando Boulevard Improvement association are carried out.

The idea of the association is to make this one of the most attractive thoroughfares in Glendale. The residents along this road claim that it is one of the heaviest traveled boulevards in Glendale and if Glendale is to make a good impression to the automobile visitors to this city this, the principal artery of travel, must be given better lighting.

Lloyd H. Wilson, secretary of the San Fernando Boulevard Improvement association, appeared before the city council last night with a petition requesting that body to take the initial steps looking toward the installation of the proposed ornamental lighting system.

The residents of San Fernando boulevard are very enthusiastic over the prospects of having their thoroughfare lighted with ornamental lights. The petition that I am presenting bears the names of the majority of frontage owners from Pacific avenue to Los Feliz road. Of a frontage of 3900 feet, 3600 is represented on this petition.

"These property owners want either three- or five-light standards, something of the better type and a character of standard that would be a credit to the city as a whole. We found only two or three property owners who were in favor of the one-light standard.

"I believe the property owners along this highway are willing to pay for the lighting standards that may be located before school property, providing the city will take care of the standards that are located in front of its property. San Fernando boulevard is a beautiful thoroughfare and we want to put it on the map."

The members of the council con-

TUNNEL ON THIRD STREET OPEN AGAIN

Glendalians driving to Los Angeles by automobile will be able to use the Third street tunnel again, starting at noon today. The tunnel has been closed for some time during the installation of a ventilating system to remove gas fumes arizing pripcipally from automobile engine exhausts. When the tunnel is reopened today, according to Los Angeles City Engineer Griffin the ventilating fans will be working and practically all of the fumes will be cleared away.

City Engineer Griffin reported to the board of public works that plans are now being prepared to install a ventilation system in the Second street tunnel now under construction that will, when completed cost $10,000. No ventilating system was included in the original plans of this tunnel as at the time these plans were prepared automobile traffic was not heavy and the nuisance from gas fumes was not anticipated.

P. G. M. OF EASTERN STAR OF CAL. DIES

Mrs. Rose Josephine Burns, past grand matron of the Eastern Star of California, passed away at the home of her father, James Neville, 1041 Sunset boulevard, Los Angeles, Thursday.

Mrs. Burns had charge of the eighth grade in Inglewood school up to a week ago. She leaves a husband, Robert Burns; her father and two sisters. Funeral services will be conducted Saturday, 1:30 p. m., in the commandery room of the Masonic temple, Pico and Figueroa streets, Los Angeles.

OLD "TROPICO" SIREN TO BE SOLD BY CITY

The old Tropico siren is to be sold. At the council meeting last night Chief Lankford informed that body that he had been offered $200 for the old siren that formerly was used for fire purposes in Tropico. He stated that it originally cost $300.

Mr. Lankford was instructed to sell the siren and it was the general opinion that it would be a good thing for this money to be used to furnish a "big feed" for the fire boys, who recently saved the city $6,000 by constructing a hook-and-ladder wagon.

Sees Merely Malice in Action Taken by Representative Welty

From time to time, according to Henry James, some man in public place is guilty of a mean act, one that shows a base motive and could not be actuated by malice. Such an act has been committed by Representative Welty of Ohio, according to Mr. James, in urging that the resignation of Judge Landis be not accepted. Mr. James in his comments on the day's news pays his respects to Mr. Welty and concludes by stating that he shows a petty malice that is likely to make all Ohio ashamed of him.

Mr. James also touches on bucket shops in New York and has a few choice remarks to make regarding "flappers."

Able editorials on "Crank Communities," "Modern Moonshine," and other pertiment subjects are followed by Dr. Crane's policy on "Mediocrity and Success," and in which he says that one of the common delusions of the world is that success is to be accounted for by some unusual capacity. He also says that mediocrity is really balance and genius is more or less unbalance.

On the editorial page also you will find an article about Hollywood written by Police Captain George K. Home of that city. It might be well for you to read this.

SHAKESPEAREAN NIGHT PROVES SUCCESS

Tuesday Afternoon Club Actors Are Improving With Practice

The presentation of scenes from "Midsummer Night's Dream," by members of the Shakespeare section of the Tuesday Afternoon club in the chamber of commerce Thursday evening was an artistic success, more finished in many ways than the original production before the club, and won appreciative applause.

An attractive stage setting, the accompaniment of Midsummer Night's Dream music played by Miss Litch upon the piano, a Shakespearean song by Mrs. John D. Cole, and a charming ballet by pupils of the Pearl Keller school, embellished the performance and provided a fitting setting for the excellent work of members of the cast who reflected credit on their director, Mrs. Henry W. Ralston.

Duke Theseus was well realized in Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, and "Hippilyta," has rarely been prepersonated by a greater beauty than was Mrs. Chester Kling in her queenly role. The lovelorn "Helena," was faithfully portrayed by Mrs. Eustace Young who was very pretty in the part. Mrs. R. A. Puffer as "Lysander," made a brave wooer, and Mrs. E. Halstead was quite the aged parent of determined mind in "Egeus." Mrs. Helen Mae Hoops made a very acceptable "Hermia," a true daughter of the aged parent who knew her own mind. The same praise could truthfully be meted out to Mrs. Bert Ward as "Philostrate," to Mrs. Walter Jones as "Demetrius," the inconstant, and Mrs. A. C. Ayars as "Lady in Waiting."

As for the clowns who entertained the duke, they were the joy of the evening and entered into their parts with an abandon altogether delightful, this group including Mrs. O. E. Von Oven, "Prologue," Mrs. Calvin Whiting as "Pyramusfi" Mrs. B. O. Holbrook as "Thisbe," Mrs. Colin Cable as "Wall," Mrs. William Hunter as "Moonshine," and Mrs. Homer Lockwood as a "Lion" to cherish in memory.

The sisters, Glen and Shirley Hitchcock added another charm in their characters of "Puck" and "Oberon," with beautiful Cecilia May Fischer taking the part of "Queen Titania."

The same little folk who made a fairyland in the original production repeated their dance and were generously applauded, the children taking part being, Elizabeth Turner, Beatrice Turner, Nellie Alcshire, Dorothy Godfrey, Mary Alice Ross, Genevieve Marek, Eleanor Thompson, Mildred Thompson, Ann Elizabeth Wilkinson, Patricia Carline, Margaret Baruch, Katherine Sonntag, Blossom Moore.

All in all it was a beautiful production worthy of the section and worthy a larger audience.

CONFESSION FOUND TO BE PARTLY TRUE

L. A. Police Corroborate Part of Story Told by Man in Detroit

STILL DOUBT TALE

Bank Teller Remembers Changing $1000 Bill Time of Murder

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 24.—The district attorney's office today announced it had corroborated evidence tending to support the "confession" of Harry N. Fields, arrested in Detroit, who claims he drove the murder party responsible for the slaying of William D. Taylor, February 1.

District Attorney Woolwine still professed considerable doubt concerning the story told by Fields of how he drove a Chinaman and a white man and woman, drug peddlers to and from the Taylor residence.

The story of the $1,000 bill which Fields said had been changed at a Los Angeles bank to pay him following the murder of the director, gained credence when L. D. Seat. teller in the Hellman Day and Night bank told of changing a bill for a stranger about the time of the murder.

Deputy Federal Attorney Thomas Greene who announced he held corroborative evidence supporting Fields' story, told of how Taylor, 18 months ago asked federal help to drive dope peddlers from the picture business. He said Taylor was particularly interested in one actress who was paying $2000 monthly for drugs. This actress was unable to break herself of the habit because narcotics were offered to her on every hand.

According to one unverified story given the searchers today by a tong enemy of the Chihaman, the latter is in Kansas City where he has been hiding since the Taylor shooting.

While the Chinatown squad was busying itself in the byways of Ferguson alley, another group of deputy sheriffs was doing some cultivation with shovels and hoes on a lawn across the street from the bungalow formerly occupied by William D. Taylor.

This group was searching for the gun used in the "movie murder," which, according to the story told by Fields to the Detroit authorities, had been buried by the Chinaman after he padded noisily from Taylor's home with the still-smoking revolver in his hand.

ACACIA P.T.A. FUND AIDED BY BENEFIT

Dramatic Art Students Donate Their Services Which Net $75

According to Mrs. William O. Alexander, president of the Acacia avenue Parent-Teacher association, that organization will clear in the neighborhood of $75 from the dramatic entertainment given for its benefit at Glendale high school Thursday evening by the Francis Gardner Wallace School of Dramatic Art of Los Angeles, by Earle Adams, who contributed two vaudeville numbers in the form of pianologues, and by assisting artists.

The association feels greatly indebted to the players who are night school students, who work during the day and who generously donated their services, also paying all their own expenses in coming to Glendale. The program and ticket printing was likewise donated, and no charge for the properties loaned for use in the play was made by the Glendale House Furnishing Co.

The play given by the pupils of the Wallace school was that old favorite, "The Lion and the Mouse," and the members of the cast, all Los Angeles young people, were R. J. Rodeaz, Sadie Flynn, Aida Marotto, Dick Alexander, William Smith, Teddy Alcock, Bert Eaton, Mr. Rosenberg and Mr. Young. It was very well presented and reflected great credit on the student actors and the school.

Earl Adams, who recently finished a successful tour on the Orpheum circuit with the Gus Edwards' Revue in his original interpretations of Al Jolson. His singing of "Jus' fo' Tonite" was unique and the kiddies in his audience were delighted.

The contribution of Don Travis, recently connected with the Pilgrimage Play and at present working on the Shakespearean Festival to be given in the Hollywood Bowl, was thoroughly enjoyed.

Song and dance numbers of Gould Moore, a Glendale boy who is a great favorite with Glendale audiences and who excels in Irish jigs, were warmly applauded, and he responded with encore numbers.

YARDSTICK PROVED UNDOING OF YOUTHFUL ELOPERS

Anna Rinear and Merton Burke

Anna Marie Rinear, 13 years, and her beau, Merton Burke, 14 years, of Sylvania, Ohio, a suburb of Cincinnati, were returned to their homes after being away on their elopement for a week. They left their home on a brand-new bicycle that Merton had received for Christmas, the young miss riding on the handlebars. By this method they reached Findlay, where Merton sold his $50 bike for $25, and then they traveled by trolley to Dayton. From Dayton they traveled to Sadieville, Ky. By this time the papers had a story of their disappearance, with an accurate description of the pair, and this was their undoing. They visited a store to purchase some food and the storekeeper suspected them of being the pair. He measured them with a yardstick and then they gave up. He turned them over to a deputy sheriff, who notified the parents. They were put up at a private home over night and the following morning an auto, with Anna's uncle came and brought them back home.

RAID OLD WINERY, PROPRIETORS ARRESTED

Much Contraband Liquor Taken by Federal Officials

One of California's oldest and most widely known wineries was raided yesterday afternoon by a force of federal prohibition agents headed by C. H. Wheeler and F. A. Hezeltine.

The winery raided was the Gai Winery on San Fernando road.

The proprietors, Givanna Gai and Victor Campanella were taken into custody and lodged in the county jail.

The prohibition agents seized the following liquors when they raided the place: Fifty gallons of moonshine brandy; fifty puncheons containing 160 gallons of claret on which the tax had been paid; forty-nine puncheons, each containing 160 gallons of claret wine on which the tax had not been paid(it is said, and 1800 gallons of sherry, made during the last grape growing season.

According to the statement of the arresting officers agents went to the winery a few days ago and paid $200 for a delivery of wine and brandy, and in payment for the wine and brandy used marked money which has since been recovered.

ASK CITY TO WIDEN ROADWAY IN COLORADO

Middle of Street In Good Condition But Sides Very Rough

A petition was presented to the city council last night asking that body to take action looking toward the improvement of Colorado boulevard on either side of the present improved strip that runs along the center of the road.

The petition claims that the center strip or road-bed is in very satisfactory shape, but that the sides of the thoroughfare are in very bad condition. The petition also states that while the street is in its present condition the property on either side of the roadway is endangered by flood waters during every rain.

The petition stated further that practically all of the property owners along this stretch are in favor of this improvement and are willing to pay for their share of the work.

The members of the council stated that they realized fully that the sides of this street are in a pretty bad condition, and they assured the petitioners that they will do everything within their power to have this work hurried along.

SERVICE

Turning the advertising pages of magazines, reading official reports and the thought that drives in and rivets in the mind is—service.

In business, in government, as in philanthropy, the busiest motivation is—service.

Service in business has replaced the thought of price as competitive method. It has placed a higher premium upon the ready mind that suggests invention in dilemma the way out, the short cut and the saving. In a sense service is the secret of true values, of successful price cutting because to the price it adds a bonus of unpaid for co-operation in meeting conditions, be it in the purchase of a tire for an automobile or the buying of a yard of gingham.

The purchase of property calls for service as much as any transaction in Glendale.

If a visitor is told that a lot or a house is worth the price, it is insufficient. It means nothing to him that the price is below the market of other property in the district.

Service begins when the patron is told why the property is worth the price, the future of Glendale and the cause of the presence of prosperity of Glendale. This is service of the higher order since it means much to the purchaser and much to the city.

As a service then the Glendale Press would tell those who hesitate about settling in Glendale, that so long as rubber tires are made, so long as automobiles are decreasing in price, so long as Los Angeles grows with a teeming and congested population on constantly enhancing ground values, so long will Glendale grow.

For it was not until the automobile began to be a common possession that Glendale began to prosper as a community. With the automobile came the growth of Los Angeles and the spreading out of that city.

As it stood at the door of the great city of opportunity, Glendale was first, and will be the last to cease, to get a big share of the overflow of population, of people of the better sort who want their own, if small, home and plot of ground.

So Glendale values will not cease to advance until all the canyon district is built up. Then we will be selling lots on the mountain slopes and Glendale city will be a metropolis, with its sustained factories and industries and payrolls.

FAMINE IN NEAR EAST INCREASES

Reports Made at Meeting of Glendale Citizens Arouses Interest

DEPEND ON AMERICA

Thousands of Children Kept Alive Only by Aid From U. S.

Stirred anew by the latest and very urgent call for the relief of the famine-stricken Near East, about 50 men and women who are members of the local committee, and representing many organizations, gathered at the First Methodist church for supper Thursday night and listened to statements made by F. L. Sims, executive secretary, and Guy Talbot, who returned a few months ago from the famine districts and gave a first-hand account of what he had seen, after visualizing the story in a presentation of a reel from "Alice in Hungerland."

The strong point brought out by Mr. Talbot is the fact that the demand is twice as great as it was a year ago, there being now about 200,000 children whose lives are dependent on the help they get from America. The fathers of these children, he explained, came to the rescue and held th elines against the German forces when the Russian resistance broke down and the great oil fields were about to fall into the hands of the enemy. German generals have said that the possession of these fields would have made a different ending to the war. These men who blocked the gateway to the east, fell in battle. Their wives were massacred or dragged to a fate worse than death in harems, their children left to surviving grandparents. Those grandparents have for the most part succumbed to the hardships that have succeeded the war, and the children are alone, destitute, starving and friendless save for the aid America can give, and he feels what we do is a debt owed to the parents who sacrificed their lives in upholding the same cause for which America enlisted.

In beginning his talk, Mr. Talbot paid a tribute to Glendale, saying its response last year was more generous than any other single community in Southern California, its four tons of clothing being of incalculable aid in covering the nakedness of the suffering children in the barren, wind-swept wastes in which they are still perishing except such as have been

WALKER NOT GUILTY OF THEFT

Jurors Find for Defendant After Hearing of Evidence

After deliberating for almost two hours yesterday afternoon a jury returned a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of Frank Waller, an employe of the Glendale Merchants Patrol and Fire Dispatch, who was accused of having taken from the garage of the Glendale Hudson Motors company a quantity of gasoline and oil and to have taken a tire.

One of the lines of the prosecution on which they were basing their case was thrown out as evidence. This was a statement signed and sworn to by Arthur Rice, which stated that he was with Walker on the nights, some time between January 3 and January 17, when the defendant took gasoline and oil from the garage. The statement also stated that Rice was with Walker on the night he took a tire from a car that had been traded to the garage by Walker and put it on the new car of the defendant.

Attorney James McBryde, for the defense filed a demurrer to the use of this affidavit as testimony claiming that Rice, who made the statement, did not state on what dates or date these alleged thefts took place and did not state whether gasoline was taken alone or oil, or whether the alleged thefts occurred on one night or on several nights.

Walker proved by the dials of the time clock carried by him and offered as evidence by his employer, Ira Herbert, that he was not with Rice on any night between January 3 and 17 after 10 o'clock at night.

L. S. Davis, one of the proprietors of the Glendale Hudson Motors company testified that he and his partner had missed small quantities of gasoline and oil but did not know who was responsible for the loss. He stated that the gasoline is kept in a tank outside the garage at the curbing and that the handle to this tank is kept in the

ROTARIANS KEPT FROM LUNCHEON BY ILLNESS

Weekly Bulletin Will Be Known as "Glendale Roto Service"

The luncheon of the Glendale Rotary Club at the Chamber of Commerce building Thursday noon was not as largely attended as usual because of the illness of several members, but was one of the most interesting sessions the organization has held.

Visitors of the day were George W. Byers, a hotel man of Champaign, Ill., and Ed W. Stafford, a druggist from Marquette, Mich.

Richardson D. White as chairman of the committee selected to choose a name for the weekly bulletin of the club was called upon for a report. The name "Glendale Roto Service" was adopted.

Roy Kent, who presided in the absence of President Cooper, gave the report of the inter-city rotary meeting at Long Beach, attended by eight clubs and their families which swelled the group to 15. The meeting, he stated, was an all-day affair at Hotel Virginia, beginning at 10:30 a. m.. Members of the Glendale club advertised their city by wearing large placards and also by singing a song about Glendale to the tune of "Katie."

At the banquet served at 12 o'clock, covers were laid for 300, representatives being present from not only nearly every state in the union, but also from many foreign countries. Cablegrams and letters were read from rotary clubs in Shankhai, Tokio, Paris, Melbourne, Sidney, and other cities in England, Scotland, Wales, New Zealand, Canada, Mexico and Cuba. Mr. Kent stated that the island last named has ten rotary clubs and is in the 25th district.

The special talk of the day, Mr. Kent said, was made by an Australian who told many interesting things about his country, its population of 30,000,000 of people, and its territory as large as the United States. Of the descendants of the aborigines he said there are now about 30,000 but they do not wear enough clothing to pin a rotary badge upon them.

Announcement was made that the international convention of rotary clubs which will be the 13th and the 17th anniversary of the order, will be held in Los Angeles June 4 to 9 inclusive, and that delegates will be present from all parts of the globe. It will be a great thing for Southern California, Mr. Kent declared.

Clifford Neale, who has just returned from attending a hardware dealers' convention in San Francisco, gave a talk about his trip, saying among other things that there was quite a little difference between business conditions in that city and Los Angeles, with the odds in favor of the Angel City.

Ed Stafford referred to the lack of flags on display Washington's birthday.

H. W. Arbury, representing a community service proposition which he is trying to introduce in this city, and before beginning his talk led members in singing three songs in various ways.

CITY TO ASK P.E. TO LOWER BRAND TRACK

Public Spirited Glendalians Urging Boulevard Improvement

ACTION IS PROMISED

Would Also Remove the Mains to Alleys on Either Side

An elaborate scheme for the improving and beautifying of Brand boulevard was presented to the Glendale council last night by a delegation consisting of Mattison B. Jones, representing the Brand Boulevard Improvement association; Attorney G. H. King, chairman of the transportation committee of the Chamber of Commerce, and Charles B. Guthrie, secretary of both of these organizations.

The scheme as outlined by this delegation is briefly as follows:

That Brand boulevard from Colorado boulevard to the north city limits of old Tropico be paved with a plain six-inch concrete base and a screen wearing surface similar to the old Tropico specifications.

That the council take steps immediately for the lowering of the Pacific Electric railway right of way to the crown grade of the street.

That the laying of water mains on South Brand boulevard be held up pending the proceedings on opening alleys.

That the council open alleys 15 feet wide from the north to the south city limits on each side of Brand boulevard at approximately one lot distant back, for the purpose of accommodating water mains, conduits, sewers, etc., using existing alleys where possible.

"For two years we have been trying to bring about these improvements," said Mr. Guthrie, "and for two years we have been put off by one thing or another. The limit of our patience has been reached and we have decided to go after this thing in earnest. About two years ago we went to the Pacific Electric company and asked that company if it would not co-operate with the people of Glendale in the improving of Brand boulevard. This company informed us that it was ready, willing and anxious to do everything it could to bring about the required improvements. It made all kinds of promises, but as is usually the method of the P. E. company, it

Detective Sergeant Delgardo stepped up to the judge and told him that there was a couple in the hall waiting for the judge to marry them. He stated that the couple had been waiting for about two hours.

Judge Lowe told Detective Delgardo to bring the couple into the courtroom. They came in and standing before the judicial bench with Attorney James McBryde and Deputy District Attorney George F. Glover acting as witnesses, they were married.

URGING ACTION ON REST HOME PERMIT

City Council Again Asked to Act on Sycamore Canyon Sanitarium

A sanitarium and rest home to be located in Sycamore canyon and to cost between $160,000 and $200,000 is the latest proposed improvement for the northeastern section of the city. Mrs. Mabel L. Tight, representing the owner of the property that it is proposed to purchase for this rest home, and Dr. Bishop, representing the syndicate of men who propose to erect this sanitarium, appeared before the city council last night, asking once more that a permit for this rest home be granted by the council.

"We want to know if something in this matter cannot be done at once," said Mrs. Tight. "This matter was presented to your honorable body two weeks ago and since that time we have been putting off the owner of this property with the promise that something would be done within a day or so. He is getting restless and we would like to have some action taken in this matter as soon as possible."

Dr. Bishop reported that the sanitarium that he and his partners propose to erect in the canyon will be strictly high class. Every building that will be put up will be erected with a view to beauty and permanence. All of the buildings will be absolutely fireproof and he is sure that they will be a credit to the city of Glendale.

A protest signed by a large number of the property owners in Sycamore canyon has been received by the council and it was stated that it is the intention of the council to give both sides a chance to be heard. Next Thursday evening was selected as the time when the protests to this sanitarium are to be heard. At this time both sides will be requested to be present and the proposition will be given a thorough hearing.

At the English village inn the landlady was recounting the splendors of the rich newcomers who had taken a big house in the neighborhood.

"They've brought a trainload of furniture," she said; "two pianners—one a grand and t'other for the servants, I s'pose. 'Ot'ouse flowers for the 'ot'ouses—well, Tom says they're so artifical he'll 'ave 'o water them with 'ot water. And they've actually fixed up one of them thingummy things what you shout down a wire and the chap at t'other end says: 'I can't hear a word you're sayin'."

gathered into the orphanages, and these last must be sustained or what has been done to rescue them will be lost. So great have been the demands on the funds of Near East workers that last September the ration allotments had to be cut 25 per cent, and a cablegram received this week reports 200,000 refugees at Erivan at the foot of Mt. Ararat, shelterless and destitute. When Mr. Talbot visited that city last summer it was practically deserted, because the inhabitants had fled toward the persian border in a desperate search for food and to escape military oppression. Now they have flocked back from the mountains, naked, or in the barest rags, and are in a most pitiable condition.

His plea was for an immediate response in money and clothing for the cargo of the "Kentuckian" of the United American line, which is to sail March 6 carrying a cargo of beans, dried fruits, etc., in a frantic effort to meet as soon as possible the great emergency reported in the cablegram referred to. Another cargo will be sent six weeks later.

Rev. Rider asked what assurance we had if these children are saved that the Turks will not massacre them. In reply, Mr. Talbot pointed out that Constantinople, where so many of the refugees of the Near East have gathered, is under international control. The trans-Caucasian country is in possession of the Red army, which holds back the Russian hordes. The Turkish empire itself he described as the prison house in which sentence upon these unhappy Shristians is suspended only because the American flag flies over the hospitals and orphanages. The American workers and the American flag are all that stand between them and annihilation by the sword, since extermination is the policy of the Turk.

The hospital at Alexandropole was pictured, where 6000 children are being cared for in such crowded conditions that there are four babies to a cot, and this in spite of the fact that the orphanage is maintained in a great barracks built for the trans-Caucasian army consisting of 150 stone buildings.

Sixty hospitals are being maintained in different parts of the Near East, the hospital being the gateway through which the children, almost dead of starvation and privation, come to the orphanages. The majority are partly blinded by eye disease, but to 10,00 0sight has been restored.

Relative to the protection of these refugees from Turkish assault, Mr. Sims stated that a bill had been introduced in the United States senate by Senator King which, it is believed, will have the support of President Harding and his cabinet, and which will call upon the department of state to remind Great Britain, France and Italy of their pledges to Armenia, and demand the fulfillment of those pledges in protection against the Turk. America having refused the mandate over Armenia, is more or less handicapped, he said, but is not absolutely helpless to protect the country.

Not all of the organizations represented on the local Near East committee sent their accredited representatives, but in the majority of such instances substitutes were there, and it was possible to organize for the work of this new year. Nathan Rigdon was elected chairman, and E. E. Osgood of the First National bank was made treasurer.

Rev. R. W. Mottern, who had called the committee together, explained that his work as district organizer would make it impossible for him to accept a local appointment.

He stated that the general plan is for a field day drive on Sunday, April 2, but that meanwhile the public is urged to respond to the emergency need which the good ship "Kentuckian" is trying to meet, and contribute money and warm, substantial clothing to the limit. The money can be sent to Treasurer Osgood of the First National bank, the clothing to the Mottern residence at 211 North Adams, or if doners will telephone Mr. Mottern at Glendale 1513-W, he will see that it is called for.

The supper was prepared and served by a committee of the Ladies' Aid of the First Methodist church, headed by Mrs. Starkey, and was a most appetizing meal, efficiently served.

The Jiji Tokio correspondent described a mob of 30,00 people clashing with police Wednesday night aronnd the Diet building. Four thousand persons were arrested, the dispatch said, and were handcuffed and roped together and hauled to jail in police patrols.

POLICE ON TRAIL OF BLACKMAILERS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Federal agents and police today believed they were on the trail of the writers of the blackmail letters which have been received by the elite of Washington's official society. Thousands of dollars are said to have been demanded from several women prominent socially under penalty of death and destruction of their magnificient homes. The police admitted they were seeking two men they think wrote the letters.

MRS. DUKE SUES.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24.—Mrs. Lillian N. Duke, former wife of James B. Duke, wealthy tobacco man, has begun a law suit to recover $325,000 in cash and $50,000 in jewelry which she alleges were fradulently obtained from her by Alfred E. Lindsay, broker.

A young reporter was sent out recently by the city editor of one of the Rochester papers to report a meeting. About two hours after the assignment was made the young reporter returned with a sad countenance. The city editor asked him to get the report up immediately, as it was nearly time to go to press.

"There will not be any report on that meeting," was the answer.

"Why not?" queried the city editor.

"There was not any meeting," replied the young reporter. "It broke up in a big row and the chairman was chucked under the table."

Arguments sometimes are lost in the heat of debate that never were tried in the fiery furnace of common sense.

NOT MAN WANTED.

CONCORD, N. C., Feb. 24.—Harvey H. Adams, arrested here on suspision that he was Edward F. Sands, wanted in connection with the murder of William D. Taylor, Los Angeles movie director, was released last night when it became definitely known he was not the man wanted.

THE FALL ENOUGH

It was an Irishman's first visit to the wilds of America, and, strange to say, he was soon fast friends with an American. The American was a dead shot. One day, while they were strolling together through the woods, the American, wishing to show off his shooting abilities, said: "Say, pard, d'ye see that bi-r-rd high up yonler tree?" "Yes," answered the Irishman. "Waal," replied Sam, I'll get that bi-r-rd, first shot." As he spoke, he raised his gun to his shoulder, took careful aim, and fired. It was a good shot, and the bird, after several somersaults, fell at their feet. The American picked it up. "I guess I've killed this bi-r-rd, pard," he drawled proudly. The Irishman pondered a while, then said: "Oi'm glad it's only guessin' ye are, for the fall was enough to kill it."

The man and the bride were among the fifty or so men and brides awaiting their turns at the marriage bureau in the municipal building.

"I'm half a dollar short," said the man to the city official who receives the $2 fee. "What'll I do?"

"Sorry I can't help you, buddy," was the answer, "but the law does not permit any rate cutting. You'll have to get the money somehow."

An hour later the man and the bride were back. They had the required $2.

"Where'd you get it?" inquired the city officer. "Borrow from friends?"

"Naw," said the man. "We didn't know nobody to borrow from, so we went out and hocked the wedding ring."

Listening in on Eve

ALL THE ATTRACTIONS

"Tomorrow night," announced the easy-going head of the house as he plunged the carving fork into the pork roast, "is the night that we will all go out together. We do that once a month," he added, turning his eyes over the tops of his glasses toward the visiting cousin. "I had thought that it would be nice to take Laura to see some vaudeville."

"Now, Jim," expostulated the brown-eyed wife, reprovingly, "how can you suggest such a thing? I know that Laura would much prefer to go to the symphony concert. Wouldn't you, Laura?" she asked with an inflection that left little room for denial.

"Why," suggested the visiting cousin, "I'd just as soon go down town to a good movie as anything else."

"Nonsense," interposed the young man son. "I'll tell you where we all ought to go. There is a show at the Gaiety that is just simply a whiz—music, dancing, clothes, society—the whole thing. Myron saw it and he said it was sure the berries."

"Russell," said his mother, "where do you get those dreadful expressions? 'Berries,' indeed! Whatever has the term 'berries' to do with an evening's amusement which the whole family will enjoy?"

"There is a good movie 'way down on Blink street," said the visiting cousin, "and if we all go there it won't cost a mint."

"There really is an excellent program this week at the symphony, Laura," said the brown-eyed wife, turning to her cousin. "There is to be a little of Brahms, Strauss, Beethroven, and Bach. I don't care greatly for Bach myself——"

"No, and neither does any one else," objected her son. "They just pretend, that's all. Aw, heck! I came in the other day when you weren't expecting me and you had 'Japanese Sandman' on the phonograph yourself."

"Jim," appealed the brown-eyed wife, "I should think that you would make some attempt to make your son treat me with respect—just common, ordinary respect. It's little enough for a wife to ask, I'm sure——"

"Why call him my son?" whimsically demanded the easy-going head of the house. "We haven't been to vaudeville for a long time, Rena——"

"Now, Jim," protested the brown-eyed wife, "let's not go into that again. It's so fatiguing to sit through the acrobats and jugglers and the silly old woman dressed like a girl who lets her dogs do the tricks and then poses herself when the applause comes. I don't mind some parts of it, but——"

"It's a good bill this week and there are no acrobats or jugglers or dog acts," appeased the easy-going head of the house. "I asked especially."

"But that show at the Gaiety," began the boy. "Gee, Myron said that there was one girl in it who had a dance that he'd never seen before, and if it was really something that he never saw, why, it must be good. Myran has enough money every week to chase around to everything good in town."

"The concert is elevating, too," ruminated the brown-eyes wife.

"But the movies would be very nice," said the visiting cousin, "and if we all go there we can be home again by 11 at the very latest."

"Who wants to get in at that time?" demanded the young man.

"Tell Hester to cut that homemade pie into big pieces," urged the easy-going head of the house. "It's excellent pie."

"Please don't, change the subject," protested his wife. "Are we going to that concert?"

"Why, we'll do whatever you like, dear," conciliated the easy-going head of the house," but at the vaudeville there really are no dogs nor acrobats nor jugglers. I asked particularly when I bought the tickets today."

CITY TO ASK TRACK LOWERING

failed to do anything. This company is long on promises and short on acts.

"But we of the Brand Boulevard Improvement association have decided to come to the legal source of action of the city of Glendale—the council. We are not going to bother with the Pacific Electric any longer. We have asked them to co-operate with us in a friendly and peaceful manner, and as they have absolutely ignored us so far as action is concerned, we are going to see what we can do to make them come through. That's why we are here tonight. We want your help and co-operation. You know that Brand boulevard as it exists today is a fright—it is a disgrace to Glendale. Our two committees are working in perfect harmony in this matter and we ask that you join us, so that we can all work together."

With regard to the lowering of the grade of the Pacific Electric right of way it is proposed to compel that company to lower its tracks at the grade crossings, it being realized that if this is done it will be impossible for the company to operate on anything like a fast schedule unless it lowers its tracks all along the line. It is known that the city has the power to compel the company to lower its tracks at the crossings.

The reason for asking that an alley be made parallel to Brand at the rear of the lots on either side of the boulevard is to eliminate the necesstiy of cutting up Brand every time a main is to be laid or when some public service corporation desires to repair its mains or cables. If these were located in the alleys, Brand could be left intact at all times.

With regard to the matter of the improvement of Brand boulevard from Colorado boulevard south to the northerly line of the old city of Tropico, members of the council stated that they had for some time been looking into the matter of a roadbed for Brand and other streets which have unusually heavy travel, and that there seems to be a few points in favor of Willite.

It was finally decided that a time would be decided upon when the council can meet in connection with the Brand Boulevard Improvement association and the transportation committee of the Chamber of Commerce and when these matters can be thoroughly taken up with representatives of the Pacific Electric company, and that these representatives be requested to be present at this session. The P. E. officials will be asked to be ready to state at this meeting just what they will do in reference to meeting the people of Glendale half way in the matter of improving Brand and to be ready to put down their propositions in writing. It is action that the Glendale people are after and they are determined to get that action one way or another, and that very soon.

It's a wicked world, no doubt, and ought to be reformed, but where did you get the idea that you are big enough for the job?

garage at night. He stated that the tire in question was a Cord tire. His partner, W. W. Riley, testified that the tire was a Goodrich fabric tire.

Walker testified that the only tire taken from his machine by him was taken on the day before he turned in his old car for another car at the agency. He stated that he took a tire off and that on the day the trade for the new car was made, he drove to a tire repair shop and put it on the new car, using tools of the shop. The proprietor of the shop verified this in his testimony.

Walker took the witness stand and testified that he had never been in the garage at night except at the hour of 10 p. m. when he turned out the lights. He stated that at one time he found a quantity of money in the cash drawer and called his employer, Ira Herbert, and that the money was taken to the office of the patrol, the owners of the garage and the police were notified that the money had been found.

It was brought out by testimony that Walker was not employed by the patrol for one week starting on January 15 and that on the nights of January 5 and 12, he had not worked.

After hearing all of the evidence offered the jury returned a verdict of "not guilty" absolving Walker of the charges.

gratulated Mr. Wilson for the spirit of enterprise and boost that he and his association is showing in this and other matters and assured him that they would be willing to do everything they can in connection with this and any other improvement matter that this or any other improvement association cares to bring forward. The petition was referred to the city engineer for checking and report.

Mr. Wilson asked the council if it could not do something with regard to relieving the troublesome condition at corner of Park avenue and San Fernando boulevard. This corner is a series of chuck holes which are filled with water from every rain and which are very dangerous to automobile travel.

The property owners at this intersection, Mr. Wilson said, are willing to do their share of paying for the improvement at this corner. Mr. Wilson personally owns 506 feet on San Fernando road and 226 feet on Park avenue, all of which he is willing to have assessed for the improvement of this intersection.

After assuring Mr. Wilson that the council is in sympathy with him and other property owners around this intersection, the council referred the matter to the city engineer. It was stated that if the frontage was sufficient the matter of improving this corner would proceed as rapidly as possible.

SENIORS WIN OUT IN HIGH CONTEST

3rd Game Won by Older Girls of School by 12-8 Score

Senior girls of Glendale High did not let their lead slip in the round robin of basketball games which they are playing. In the deciding game Thursday night with freshment teams who were on their metal to win, they had a stiff contest in the first team game which they had to work hard to win by a score of 8 to 12.

The score in the second team game was 9 to 30 in favor of the seniors.

In this tournament the seniors have won all three games in which they have played. Two games have been won by juniors, and the sophomores have won two second team games but none with first teams.

There will be a try-out of girls next week to pick the players who will form a school basketball team to enter the field meets in the spring.

Work by the girls in baseball will be started very soon and a similar round robin tournament will be conducted, which will be followed by a try-out to choose a team which will play other schools.

Tennis practice wil lalso soon start. The girls of the school belong to a league composed of four or five schools with whom their team when chosen will play.

The big furniture sale now on at the Page Furniture company will continue for several days, and some wonderful reductions are being made to reduce the mammoth stock of this big furniture concern.

Owing to the inclement weather Mr. Page feels that the sale should be continued long enough to give the people of Glendale an opportunity to take advantage of the extremely low prices on high-class goods. Don't fail to see this stock before the sale closes. It is high-class in every respect and rightly priced.

FOUND GUILTY OF DISTURBING PEACE

A. C. Arnold Fined $50, Good Chance to Clear Another Charge

Entering a plea of guilty to a charge of disturbing the peace in South Glendale several weeks ago, A. C. Arnold was yesterday afternoon sentenced to pay a fine of $50, which he did.

Arnold is also held in connection with the cashing of an allegedly worthless check at the Bentley-Schoeneman Lumber company where he was employed at one time. Police officials are giving him an opportunity to clear up the trouble regarding the check. The lumber company, through the head of the firm, has agreed to file no formal charge against Arnold if he can straighten up the matter of the check.

According to Arnold he received a check from friends in the east in response to a letter from him. This check was taken to the office of the lumber company and cashed. The check was returned as worthless. Arnold maintains that the check was given to him by a man who has considerable funds in the bank in the city from which the check was mailed. There is apparently a mistake in the account at the bank and Arnold is confident that this mistake can be cleared up. A telegram has been sent to the bank in the eastern city and another to the writer of the check, and when answers to the telegrams are received it is believed that the clouded financial skies of Arnold will be cleared.

FIVE KILLED WHEN TWO TRAINS CRASH

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 24.—Five trainmen were killed when Winnipeg flier No. 10 collided head-on with a snow plow three miles east of Waverly, Minn., on the Great Northern. Nine persons, including one passenger, were reported injured. The Winnipeg flier was double-headed and the force of the collision locked the first engine with the one pushing the snow plow. The three engines and one mail car plunged over a 20-foot embankment.

Fashions for Americans

Capes of every type are being sponsored for early spring. The cape coat is one of the most highly favored types, and it appears in sports lines as well as in regulation wraps. The wrap shown in the sketch is an example of the cape coat type. It may be developed effectively in one of the soft lightweight velour fabrics, with the cape lined in crepe de chine or other silk in contrasting color.

There is a very wide fabric range. The color listing is equally generous. For sports, high shades such as jockey green, tomato red, dahlia, etc., are popular, while for the regulation wraps the staple shades, such as brown, tan, navy and several gray tones, lead.

Some of the wraps show wide sleeves, others are sleeveless, as the one if the sketch, and a universally approved feature is the low waist line. Sometimes a slightly bloused effect is featured, and again the low waist line is indicated merely by the placing of the belt or girdle.

Trimming on the new spring coats and wraps is decidedly varied, braids and embroideries being much used, of course, with applique work also favored. Satin and cire ribbon are also frequently seen as trimming for collar, edge of cape, and sleeves.

A new style feature sponsored by some of the French designers is the frock that matches the lining of the accompanying coat or cape. For example, a lovely straight line dress of plaid silk crepe with a navy background was accompanied by a straight line cape of the plain navy lined half way up with plaid. The effect was distinctly charming.

Capes and Cape Coats Lead in Showing of Spring Wraps.

Feathers that droop or trail at the side, front, or back of the hat have been regarded as quite the thing in trimming this season, and the sketch at the top of the group of accessories shown indicates one of the possibilities of the long, trailing feather. It is slipped through a slash in the soft crown of the large hat, which is of velvet, duvetyn, or other soft material, and supplies the chapeau's only real decoration.

Spring millinery is now very much to the fore in the minds of designers and milliners, winter headgear now being of interest only to the retailer. One of the advance spring millinery notes heralds the fact that a very shiny satin, designated slipper satin, because it is of the exact texture of the satin used to cover slippers, is to be very much featured in the making of hats. Coque and other uncurled feathers are liked as a trimming for these satin hats.

Today's sketch also shows one of the popular present-season types of evening slippers, combining black velvet and a rich metal brocade.

The hair ornament is a very lovely and dainty affair, really a wreath or crown of gold tissue leaves lightly mounted on a wire or ribbon.

The girdle shown is a twisted metal affair finished at either end with an oriental ornament. These scarabs and sphynx heads are featured in other smart girdles which are formed by joining two rather heavy metal chains, with the oriental ornaments set at intervals the entire length of the girdle.

The newest of bead girdles are made of very small beads in gorgeous colorings woven into net or cloth so that in appearance they form a fabric much like the long popular beaded bags. They are featured in various widths and are fringe finished at the ends.

The Sketch Shows a Few of the Season's Smart Accessories

Truths in Epigram

The concessions of the weak are the concessions of fear. — Burke (1729-1797).

Nothing has such power to broaden the mind as the ability to investigate systematically and truly all that comes under thy observation in life.—Aurelius (121-180 A.D.).

His only fault is that he has no fault.—Pliny the Younger (61-105 A. D.).

CRANK COMMUNITIES

The Doukhobors of the northwest are giving the Canadian authorities something to think about. The latest notion of this crazy sect is that they should kill their old people and children, sell their property, and thus free of incumbrance, roam the earth as vagrants. The colony presided over by the distinguished ignoramus Voliva at Zion City may as well concede that the championship among crank communities has been snatched from it.

These Doukhobors are Russians. They are industrious when not on one of their lunatic pilgrimages. They object to the restrictions of government. Against the payment of taxes they rebel. Their proposed jaunt is a phase of protest. They even decline, in their moments of exaltation to be hampered by clothes. With glad cries they cast aside their garments, and give the Canadian breeze a chance to waft them hence, but at this point it is the habit of the police to interfere. So far the efforts of the queer folk to strew the plains with their frozen cadavers have been balked, whether fortunately or not, would be difficult to say.

An individual goes crazy, so may a family, a community, a sect. The problems becomes trying. There are not asylums enough for a multitude of incurables. What to do with this howling and unclad bunch is a puzzle. It is Canada's puzzle, and nobody envies that country the considerable task of attempting a solution.

MODERN MOONSHINE

There was a time when "moonshine" was a term used to indicate show without reality. Moonshine was the vaporing of the imaginative minded. It was boasting, bluff; a lie, but a tiny and white lie, not intended to do harm. Modern moonshine is wholly different. To a large extent it is intended to do harm, and does it. It no longer indicates the comparatively honest whisky of the mountaineer, distilled by the light of lunar beams in order to befool the snooping revenue officer. It is poison, bearing in its fiery current the potentiality of death. It is the stock in trade of the bootlegger to whom human life, save his own obnoxious one, is deemed not worth considering.

Recently a man died in the Sacramento county hospital as the result of drinking denatured alcohol that had reached him in the guise of moonshine. To the same institution at about the same time were taken ten others. They had been drinking a similar quality. Five are paralyzed. There is no indication of ultimate recovery. Five are stone blind. For them there is no possibility of recovery. And the death mentioned was not the first due to the traffic of the bootlegger.

It is singular if there is not power enough in the law to end the fearful traffic. The bootlegger who sells stuff that kills, is a murderer, and deserves to be treated as such. It hardly is presumable that he has in him any latent humane impulse that may lead to reform. The prospect of making him a good man is so remote as to be negligible. There appears no method of reaching his conscience, but to reach and immure his person ought not to be beyond a reasonable hope.

Even the foes of prohibition entertain a prejudice against being assassinated. Therefore the prejudice against moonshine may be regarded as common to all.

A STEP BACKWARDS

A negro in Texas charged with murder was induced to take a new fangled drug which is said to have the power to make the individual dosed, tell the truth absolutely. While in the condition due to the drug he reiterated his innocence, nor could any questioning shake his story. His accusers, on the contrary, declined a like dosage. Therefore the accused was released.

The question of guilt or innocence was determined formerly by the test of fire or water. If the accused was burned upon contact with fire, the fact of guilt was fairly well established. Now sometimes the flaming victim was given a second chance by being cast into the deep. If he sank, then his guilt became as clear as though written across the azure vault by the visible finger of providence.

It hardly is to be believed that the authorities of Texas would advocate these methods. The one they prefer is more humane. That it is utterly meaningless will be the fact quickest to be impressed upon intelligence outside that state. If a drug befogs the senses, the babble of the person influenced in such manner could have no value.

However, if Texas is pleased, and accused persons are pleased, the expense of court procedure may be regarded as abolished, and surely this circumstance is worth taking into account.

WATCHING THE WEATHER

Solomon said something to the general effect that a man who watched the clouds would neither sow nor reap. And Solomon was so wise in his day that much knowledge is to be drawn from the record of his wisdom. If a liberal interpretation is put upon this particular utterance it would be taken to imply that there is not much use in paying too much attention to the weather. Or put more simply: Come rain or come shine, keep plugging along.

Weather prognostications are not invariably correct. The merchant reads that tomorrow is to be cloudy or marked by showers. He at once concludes that there would be no utility in advertising the bargains he had expected to advertise. But tomorrow turns out to be fair, and the bargains, of which the public remains unaware, of course fail to move. But had the day been rainy instead, the people desiring to purchase would have had the essential information, and acted upon it at the first chance. In the wet region around Puget Sound rain never is permitted to interfere with business, or there would be long periods without business. It does not seem reasonable that in a community accustomed to a much less degree of moisture, the occasional rainy day should be permitted to halt the procession of commerce.

The time to advertise bargains, or anything else, is when whatever commodity is for sale is ready to sell. Weather is an incident, too much heeded. A downpour ought to stimulate business in certain lines. The business that prospers to the normal extent is the one whose management is mindful of the need for publicity. The effect of the weather upon publicity would be practically minus, if the merchant always bore in mind the words of Solomon.

WRITTEN TO EXHAUSTION

It could be wished, and indeed, it is wished by the public, that writers had the habit of dropping a subject before they had utterly exhausted it. This would spare readers much. Flaring headlines day after day over mere words concerning a circumstance that in the beginning was full of interest, become finally to be regarded as a nuisance. This might not be the case if fresh information were being added. It is the case when the subject matter is a combination of rehashed incidents and idle conjecture, the whole perhaps tinctured by malice.

When a man has been murdered the crime startles. It is an outrage upon society. There is acute sympathy for the victim. There is a natural desire that the assassin be caught and punished. These circumstances afford small excuse for keeping details fresh in the public mind, for casting suspicions that have no basis in fact, for dragging in the names of chance acquaintances. When an effort is made to picture forth the intimate life of the murdered man, dragging in experiences that, reflecting credit or discredit upon him, can have no relation to the tragedy, the process more than verges upon indecency, for it is indecency.

Ordinary judgment bears out the assertion that it is possible to be acquainted with a man, to have associated with him in business, and nevertheless, in the event of his being slain, to be quite unaware of the identity of the slayer, and to be quite free from danger of being accused of the crime. When ardent space writers have absorbed this common sense view, the world will be better and happier.

A man may walk right up without walking upright.

Don't judge a woman's complexion by the package it comes in.

Usually the more a man is wrapped up in himself the colder he is.

If a man is his own worst enemy he has a natural-born fool to take care of.

The man who gets as large a salary as he thinks he deserves is overpaid.

MEDIOCRITY AND SUCCESS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

One of the common delusions of the world is that success is to be accounted for by some unusual capacity.

The belief is quite prevalent that those go farthest in the world who are extraordinarily endowed in some one direction.

DR. FRANK CRANE

The great banker is supposed to be a man of financial genius, the successful warrior is the one who has the genius for warfare, the millionaire is the man who has the gift for affairs, and the great statesman is the one who is somehow or other divinely endowed to play the game of politics.

All this is exceedingly doubtful. The probability is that the man who has the greatest chance for success in life—if by success we mean the ability to "get along," the power of accomplishing things and winning not only material reward but the general respect of his fellowmen—is the man who is most thoroughly mediocre.

For, when you come to look at it, mediocrity is really balance and genius is more or less unbalance.

Action, said a philosopher, requires co-operation, but in general if you set your face against custom, people will set their faces against you.

It does not auger well for one's success to see too far, or to be too fully committed to ideals.

Along with this far-sightedness, there must be enough near-sightedness so that we can see what our fellows are about and not lose them.

There is no doubt that if a man 200 years ago had seen the conditions that prevail in civilization at present, and had preached them loudly, he would have been promptly clapped into jail.

Imagination is a good thing, but, unless it be strongly harnessed by circumspection and sharply bitted by caution, it is like to be as a wild horse and run away with us.

Of course, great genius in some one direction can bring a man into large public notice, and he can become famous as an actor, an author, a singer, a money-maker, or in some other direction. But, as a rule, those who achieve this kind of success are not happy. They enjoy neither domestic felicity nor social contentment.

For one thing, any kind of pre-eminence is certain to awaken envy just as surely as action is equal to reaction.

One of the deepest cravings of the human being is for the love and respect of his fellow-men, and to excel them any way is one of the surest means to forfeit these.

We love our equals. We instinctively are repelled from our superiors. And those who give out the impression generally that they are no better nor worse than their companions, no stronger nor weaker than them, and no wittier nor more clever, are those who are the most sure to reap the largest harvest of esteem.

Socrates was too wise and the world was not ready to appreciate him till they had removed him to the realm of the dead, where all men are equal.

Men did not grasp the moral grandeur of Jesus and would not accept His wisdom until they had killed Him.

THE LISTENING POST

The world is full of a lot of good things.
That we do not make enough use of.
The value of things lies in their use.
Ideals are of no value without use.
Food and drink and raiment are valuable, as we make use of them.

* * *

The value of things depends upon their relation to the needs of the human family.
Or the fancies of the human family.
And their use.
For surely heaps of grain stored away in the desert far from human beings would be of little use.
Until it was transported and distributed.

There is a lot of fresh air in the world.
We need to make more use of it.
To fill the lungs to the limit and set the pulses bounding with unvitiated air.
There is a lot of beauty in the world.
We need to make use of that.

* * *

We need to fill the eyes and the soul and the spirit with it.
To set the mental pulses leaping and bounding.
To uplift the idealism of the spirit with beauty.
That is what beauty is for.
To lift us into ourselves.

* * *

So we can't afford to miss the beauty of a flower nodding by the wayside.
We need to take some of the grace and color of it into our spirits.
For thus we make a cultural advance.

There are necessaries of life.
Food and air and water and raiment and heat and light and a lot of things.
And with the necessaries of life we may grow to the cultural spirit of life.
Man was not intended to live by bread alone.
As the Master said.
And he was a poet, student, teacher, philosopher and friend.
He was intended to live by every word that proceeds out of the mouth of the Creator.

* * *

And the Creator speaks in the flowers of the field.
In the trees that lend us shade.
In the majesty of the mountains.
In rainbows and showers and sunsets and cloud and the sea and the forest.
All these are words out of the mouth of the Creator.
And we need to love much by them.

* * *

There is music in the world.
Poetry.
Literature.
Philosophy.
Friendliness.
And we do not make enough use of them.

* * *

We hurry and worry and scurry through life and at the closing of it we see where we missed a lot of joy by the roadside.
We race and chase and fail to see the glories that are all about us.

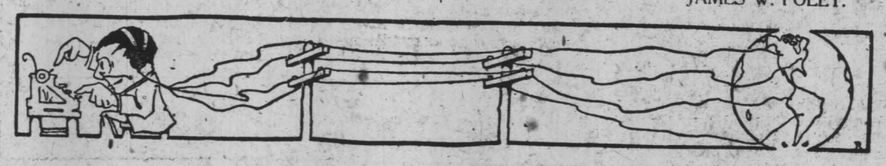
It is use that makes value.
The book is valuable when it is used.
So is the harp.
The fine spirits of us are valuable only when they are used.
Otherwise they are treasures laid away from the eye and the soul to rust and mildew and decay.
Find the beauty of living.
And make use of it.

JAMES W. FOLEY.



SONGS OF THE POETS

Song—By Allan Ramsay—(1686-1758)

At setting day and rising morn,
Wi' soul that still shall love thee,
I'll ask o' Heaven thy safe return,
Wi' a' that can improve thee.

I'll visit aft the birken bush
Where first thou kindly tauld me
Sweet tales o' love, and hid by blush,
Whilst round thou didst infauld me.

To a' our haunts I will repair,
By greenwood, shaw, or fountain,
Or where the summer day I'd share
Wi' thee upon yon mountain:

There will I tell the trees an' flooers,
From thoughts unfeigned an' tender;
By vows you're mine, by love is yours
A heart that cannot wander.

Hollywood a Model of Lawful Civic Decency

By POLICE CAPTAIN GEORGE K. HOME

(Now in charge of Hollywood district police department; formerly Chief of Police of the city of Los Angeles; for eighteen years an officer of the Los Angeles police department, holding all executive positions.)

I am making this statement at the request of the Screen Writers' Guild, the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, various Hollywood social and religious organizations, and representatives of the press.

The reason I have not heretofore issued a statement regarding conditions in Hollywood is simply that I felt the eastern newspapers libels and slanders which have been lately circulated were too ridiculous to take seriously. In my eighteen years of experience with the Los Angeles police department, I have learned that the best way to counteract irresponsible and exaggerated publicity is to treat it with the silent contempt it deserves, except in cases where the community or the individual is sustaining actual injury from continued misrepresentation. This is the situation at the present time.

The Hollywood district of the city of Los Angeles, the people who reside therein, and the whole motion picture industry have been villified and defamed by eastern newspaper correspondents who, using the Taylor murder case as an excuse, have broadcasted mendacious and totally unsubstantiated slanders. These correspondents, for the sake of the money they they obtain for their space-writing, have fabricated their stories, almost without exception, out of their imaginations. To prove this I will draw the deadly parallel between their "pipe dreams" and the cold facts as shown by the records of the Hollywood police department.

In the first place Hollywood has been represented as a "film colony," a separate community from Los Angeles, given over entirely to studios and the Bohemian "resorts" and "hangouts" of film people. The truth is that Hollywood is a district of the city of Los Angeles, 23 square miles in extent, with a population of 70,000, of which over two-thirds are not in any way connected with the films. It has a large business district and nearly 12,000 beautiful homes, most of these owned by the people who live in them. It has 22 churches, one high school, the finest in America, with 2500 pupils; 11 grammar schools, with over 6000 pupils, and a large junior high school is now being built. Moreover, Hollywood is the home of the Southern Branch of the University of California, with over 3700 students. These are just a few facts, but they disprove the statement that Hollywood is a "movie colony," do they not?

Now, as to Hollywood being "drug-crazed" and full of "wild night life." In this 23 miles which my department covers there is a total police personnel of less than 70 men! Five of these patrol the San Fernando valley district, twelve miles from Hollywood. Ten more are assigned to traffic duty on busy corners and before schools. The remaining fifty-odd cover the whole district, without even a police or fire alarm system to aid them, relying upon the upright character of the residents to keep us informed of crimes and fires by telephone.

For comparison's sake, let us refer to the Wilshire district of Los Angeles, a district only 12 miles square, solely a residence district and without a business section. It is patrolled now by 113 men. If Hollywood had the same proportion of people to the square mile as has the Wilshire district, we would have a force of 216 men here instead of an actual Hollywood force of 55 men.

Why has Hollywood such a comparatively small force of police? Because Hollywood, being a high class residence district, peopled by a home-loving and law-abiding population, is practically free of all crimes of violence!

The best index to the moral character of a community is its police records. Here is the complete and final refutation to the wild stories the eastern newspapers have published. Our police records, covering this district with its 70,000 people, including the people employed in its 22 motion picture studios, show that:

In the last ten years there has been no murder in Hollywood.

In the last five months there has not been an arrest for prostitution, nor for peddling narcotics.

In the last five months the Hollywood police have received no complaints from any residents of any wild party being held within the precincts of Hollywood, and have not been called upon to raid a single home or apartment.

Arrests for felonies average less than three per week and half of these arrests are made at the request of outside communities.

Holdups and crimes of violence are practically unknown in Hollywood.

Of the persons arrested by our officers for offenses, other than violations of the traffic ordinances, for many months past, not a single one has been actually employed in the motion picture business.

Practically every arrest in Hollywood for felony is a "floater" who happens to drift into the district attracted by its evident prosperity.

There is no hospital in Hollywood, except a small emergency hospital. There is one sanitarium which treats drug addicts, but this institution has been eighteen years in operation, was originally located here before there was any community to speak of, simply because of the attractive climate, and is an institution known all over the southwest and drawing its patients, not from Hollywood, but from outside places.

Some years ago there was a discoverable traffic in drugs among the army of "camp followers" who were attracted here by the lure of the motion pictures. That is a thing of the past. So, to a large extent, is the army of "camp followers." There are criminals who attempt to prey on high-salaried motion picture people—that's the penalty of wealth and fame everywhere—but these parasites don't hang out in Hollywood.

There's no place for them to hang out. There isn't a road house, there isn't a cabaret or a restaurant with a dance permit, there isn't a roof garden, or any sort of rogues' rendezvous in the whole district of Hollywood. There isn't a place where liquor is sold or public dancing by diners allowed.

I'm in love with Hollywood because it's a real home place. Every man on the Hollywood force likes it because it is a good, clean, residential district, with the finest schools in the world, a place where our children can be raised as far from contaminating influences as it is possible to get. I came here to see that conditions were made right in Hollywood. I suspected, from various vague rumors, that there might be some truth in the stories of "night life," and I'm happy to say that I found conditions very different from what had been represented to me by some irresponsible persons.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

From time to time some man in public place is guilty of a mean act. By this is meant an act that shows base motive, that could be actuated by nothing but malice, and that must excite not only the indignation but the disgust of the public. Such an act is that of Representative Welty of Ohio in writing to the President urging that the resignation of Judge Landis be not accepted. A fair knowledge of American history, a more than cursory inspection of events as they pass, and a rigid search of memory, all fail to bring to mind an instance of any official who by his attitude and display of qualities has more richly earned condemnation. Statesmen in debate show temper and lack of poise. In deliberation they possibly manifest poor judgment. With few exceptions they uphold the standards of personal decency.

HENRY JAMES

Welty desired to bring about the impeachment of Judge Landis. He got no support, but he had not given up the fight. The result of impeachment would have been the retirement of Landis in disgrace. Landis has voluntarily retired. This removes him as a target for Welty, who still fancies that he has a shot in the locker. If to hold two positions was unwise, the offending has ceased. When Welty fails to be content with the mere fact of retirement, he shows a petty malice that is likely to make all Ohio ashamed of him.

In a bucket shop in New York one of the features of the office was a battery of telephones, over which conversations were constantly taking place within the hearing of prospective customers. "Don't thank us so much," one of two of the employees would be shouting over the telephone, "what? You did not expect to make as much as $10,000 on that little transaction? Why, my dear sir, that is nothing at all. You are too enthusiastic. People that take our advice the way you do are getting rich every day." And with the stage laid in this fashion it is not surprising that Barnum's estimate was entirely too low. It may have been all right in his day, but times have changed.

Bids for constructing two tubes under the Hudson river for the vehicular traffic were opened in New York and the lowest bid was $19,250,000. The estimate of the cost of the entire work is close to $29,000,000. These are rather tremendous figures, but it is claimed that every section of the United States would get some business impetus and benefit from the work because the materials needed in the construction of the tunnel would have to be gathered from many widely separated localities.

Americans would regret it were the little navy men and the little army men to have their way in congress. Cutting down both arms of defense did not excite much opposition. As to the navay cut and vacation approval was general.

The time for abolition of the army and navy will arrive with that for abolishing the police everywhere, leaving doors unlocked, and packing bank receipts in the front window instead of in the vault. It is quite possible to be pacific and sincere without being silly.

Were the term "flapper" suddenly eliminated from the English language, a wonderful series of gaps would be created. How then could one describe the modern young girl in a word? It simply couldn't be done. Not that the girl flaps at all. The characterization is arbitrary. Somewhere, sometimes, some girl was detected in the act of flapping. Lo! a word was born and a new human classification established.

"Flapper" did not reach this country until after England had become familiar with it. It is supposed to have originated from the fact that English girls at a certain stage of development, wore their hair in the well known pigtail style. As they hippity-hopped to school, these pigtails flapped. The flap did not indicate then that the girls were flip. This meaning represents an after thought.

In the story of "Bunker Bean" there was a flapper. People who recall the tale, later a play and then a picture, will remember that Bunker married the flapper. This was no important event in literature except that the author probably imported the flapper by a stroke of his pen. She has been here ever since, and now is a flock.

Two persons leaped into the Pacific off the coast of California on a recent day. One was a woman, a first class passenger, the second a colored waiter. The tragedies could have had no relation except that the spectacle of the earlier one may have wrought upon the feelings of the waiter, making him irresponsible.

Suicides at sea are not particularly rare, but for them to occur so close together as to constitute a dual tragedy, was an incident for which precedent would be hard to find.

Respectable newspaper men are conscious of a mingled feeling of indignation and shame at the conduct of the Los Angeles Examiner in relation to the Taylor murder.

The charge is made by the district attorney that representatives of that paper captured the former servant of Taylor, and sought to torture him into confessing to things there was no ground for supposing he could know. This action the district attorney says was "presumptuous, dangerous and dastardly." He expressed regret that the perpetrators cannot be put in jail.

In this opinion, and this regret, decent newspapers join heartily.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Resolved, That I am off this Barger person for life. He's a trifle too childish for a grown-up man. I feel that any moment I might be called on to take him on my lap and wipe away his tears.

I have been in the temper of a widowed hyena all day long because of Barger. Up to last night he had been a good friend of mine. He had made me free of his bottle and in return I gave him largess from my cellar. I thought he was an entertaining, humorous, incisive sort of person, though I admitted that his manners were a shade too closely reminiscent of fine old Empire Camembert from time to time. But I excused him.

"Jim Barger," I said to myself, "lived rough when he was a boy. Maybe he is a shade too abrupt now and then: But he has a good heart."

Maybe that heart of his is all that I thought it was. But in that case he has a mighty bad liver. I asked him to dinner last night, along with my wife and a very dear friend. After dinner we were to go to the vaudeville and then on to some wax finish place for a little easy dancing. My friend Jim crabbed the entire act. He was rude to my wife, neglectful to my friend, and too insistently friendly to me.

"I think he was put out because we had a fourth in to dinner," I told Mrs. Pilgrim. "He acted the way he did because he is genuinely fond of us."

The funny part is that this explanation is true, as I verily believe. He does like us. He likes to be alone with us. He resents the entrance of any one else unless he happens to be the host, when he would engage the whole dining room of his hotel and fill it with guests. He wants to have the spotlight turned on himself continually. He wants people to make a fuss over him.

So far as I am concerned, he can find some one else to do the fussing. Once more it is borne in on me, and this time with a cold chisel and a gouge and a hacksaw, that bad manners are only another name for low-down, contemptible selfishness. A man may not know how to behave in the company in which he finds himself, but that is not bad manners. That is his misfortune.

But a man who will deliberately make other people uncomfortable because he is peeved is pure swine. Even gutter birth and stable-yard rearing is no excuse.

RIGHT OF WAY RULE IS ONLY SAFE ONE

Third of Accidents Traceable to Violations Club Reports

A check on the general run of automobile accidents as kept by the safety bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California reveals the fact that the question of the "right of way" is the greatest menace to the safety of the motoring public.

Who has the right of way? Representatives of the Auto club claim that carelessness in solving this apparent conundrum is responsible for more accidents on Southern California highways and streets than any other single factor in road rules.

Out of 760 accidents checked and recorded, 203 were found to be traceable to a violation of the right of way rule. And the club points out that every motorist can easily become acquainted with the law in this instance.

Of course there are other important causes of motor accidents. The cutting of corners is a vital issue, also cutting in ahead of another vehicle in a reckless manner—watch out for these things.

Motorists are not always at fault, either, the club has found out in its analysis. Careless pedestrians are the cause of many fatalities and it behooves those on foot to watch out for their own safety just as much as it behooves the motorist to watch out for the safety of others.

BURGLAR SHOT AT, DID NOT KNOW IT

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 24.—Pity the poor burglar, whose physician deformities greatly handicap him at his work!

Charles Howard, 27, was recently arrested here when officers found him in the act of robbing a store. Thus far they claim to have traced 51 burglaries to him, but state that he probably got away with twice that number.

Aside from this record, Howard is very nearly stone deaf. He is so deaf that he didn't know that he had been shot at by one man whose home he was attempting to loot, until told about it by the police, following his arrest.

Howard doesn't know how many burglaries he has committed. He is only certain of one thing—that he sold loot which the police estimate worth $10,000 for a few hundred dollars. When Howard didn't find anything in a store, according to his story, he "busted up the joint" just for good luck. In one place he was so angry at finding nothing that he smashed two baskets of eggs, just for meanness.

He was caught while in the Rossman jewelry store when Rossman, living overhead, heard a noise and telephoned the police.

Howard was so hard of hearing that he went on about his search for valuables after the police squad had broken down the door and stood a few feet away watching him for several minutes—just to "get the goods on him cold."

PROMINENT WOMAN BURIED ON MONDAY

With the death on Saturday of Mrs. Ida May Fischer, wife of Ed L. Fischer of 1107 West San Fernando boulevard, there passed from the activities of life of Burbank, one of its best known residents.

Of a cheerful, happy disposition, bright and witty, always making the day brighter for those about her. Mrs. Fischer had won more devoted friends than does the average person in passing through life. She was an active member of the Methodist church and until failing health prevented, was a leader in the various phases of the church work, and there and in social life, she will be greatly missed and long remembered.

The deceased was born in Illinois forty-seven years ago but had resided in Burbank for many years. She is survived by her husband and two daughters, Hazel Fischer and Mrs. Lesueur Gowar who was recently married.

The funeral services were held Monday afternoon in A. C. Fillbach's funeral chapel. They were conducted by the Rev. Thomas F. Allen of the Methodist church. Interment was in Grand View, cemetery.

STANFORD GOLFERS ARE TRYING OUT

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Feb. 24.—Stanford golfers are getting under way for the spring season. Try-outs are being held by Captain Millard Rosenblatt. The top men will form the team which will compete with the University of California team.

The date for the Stanford-California match has not as yet been set. Neither has the course been selected, although it is probable that either the Claremont or Sequoyah course at Berkeley will be used.

COMMERCIAL CLUB COMMUNITY HOUSE

The commercial club has inaugurated a new program of entertainment which promises to be very popular with the membership. Every Friday night it will keep open house to the members, their wives and guests. It will be quite informal, which is the feature that is making it popular. The club has recently purchased a piano and phonograph and these will be brought into use for dancing. Cards and other games will be played according to the pleasure of those present, and refreshments will be served.

REVIVAL MEETING MAKING CONVERTS

The evangelistic meetings being held at the Christian church are resulting in an awakening interest and a number of converts. The church is crowded at every service.

The Rev. LeGrand talked Sunday night on the subject of "Excuses," and brought out those which are most frequently given by outsiders not coming into the church.

Among those touched upon was that of there being hypocrites in the church and therefore the outsider does not wish to join the church. In this connection, Rev. LeGrand flatly denied that there was a hypocrite in the church. "Anyone who makes that statement is either stringing you for a fool or is grossly ignorant," he declared.

"There may be some who are hypocrites and have their name on the church roll but they are not members of the invisible church of Christ, and if you do not wish to associate with hypocrites, get into this church where there are no hypocrites," and he further stated that the man who hid behind the hypocrite was smaller than the hypocrite or he could not hide behind him.

Mr. Howe, the musician of the evangelistic team furnishes choice selections as a vocalist, a violinist and as an expert on other instruments of unusual type. Mrs. LeGrand entertains at every meeting with an attractive contralto voice.

At the present time the number of cases is somewhere in the neighborhood of 150 to 200, but the peak of the epidemic—if epidemic it can be called—is thought to be passed, and many who have been sick are now restored to health.

BERKELEY SUMMER SCHOOL ATTRACTS MANY NOTABLES

56 Distinguished Educators Will Attend Sessions

According to the Summer Session Bulletin just published by the University of California, Berkeley is to be the gathering place for 56 educators of note from eastern and foreign institutions of learning, during the coming summer session. That the University is able to secure the services of eminent scholars is due not only to its high standing among the universities of the country, but also to its environment. Many of these instructors are coming to California for the first time and in this way are combining intellectual pursuits with vacation pleasures.

The number of courses to be offered in the Berkeley session for 1922 is very much larger than ever before. The growing popularity of summer school work throughout the country has given an impetus to the preparations for this year. Business men, scientists, housewives, teachers, mothers, artists, and musicians have been considered in the planning of the general program.

Due to the flexibility of the requirements for summer school work, auditors as well as students will find pleasure in the variety of lecture courses. Titles such as these hold alluring possibilities: "Period Styles in Furniture and Interior Decoration," "Birds of California, their habits and habitat," "Historic Embroidery," "Dramatic Criticism," "French Literature of Today," "Child Welfare" and "Old Spanish Ballads."

The summer session bulletin can be obtained on application to the Recorder of Faculties, University of California, Berkeley, Calif.

Experiments With Olive Pickling

Recent experiments conducted by W. V. Cruess, associate professor of fruit products of the University of California, have developed a method of preventing the softening of olives during pickling. This method consists in pasteurizing the olives in the vats at 175 degrees F. Experiments by Prof. Cruess have also shown that olives may be sterilized in accordance with the regulations of the state board of health at 240 degrees F. for 40 minutes without injury to flavor, taste or appearance. In order to do this correctly, the methods of pickling described in Bulletin No. 333 of the California Agricultural Experiment Station must be followed.

Feeding of Rice to Hogs

During the past three months an experiment has been in progress at the University of California farm to determine the value of rice and various rice products as feed for fattening swine when fed in conjunction with barley and tankage.

One carload of hogs has been fattened and marketed and another carload is now on feed. The carload of hogs now in feed lots will be finished on or about March 1. A report of these tests will be given at the California Swine Breeders' Association meeting during Stockmen's Week, February 20 to 24. Those in attendance at the University farm during this week will have an opportunity of seeing these hogs in the lots.

Women Farmers Increasing

The number of women in California engaged in farming is increasing steadily, according to Miss Mary A. Phinney, of the mailing department of the University of California agricultural experiment station. Ten years ago there were few women in California receiving agricultural bulletins. Now women make up an important part of mailing list for the state. Some of these are operating ranches independently, others have charge of one or two farm enterprises, such as poultry and bee keeping; still others are responsible for estates operated by managers. All realize the value of scientific information on agriculture in solving the problems in their business.

Demand for Trained Student Help

The demand from fruit growers for students trained in fruit growing to assist in various orchard operations on ranches during week-ends and vacations, is increasing according to J. C. Whitten, professor of pomology at the University of California. Pruning, spraying, planting, and fruit packing are some of the services students are called upon to perform. So far the demand for help has been greater than the available number of competent, trained students.

Work of this character has helped to defray the expenses of many students through the University of California College of Agriculture. In some cases it has resulted in students securing desirable positions as ranch managers upon graduation. Members of the university faculty are careful to recommend for this work only those capable of rendering satisfactory service.

Hold Ham and Bacon Show

A ham and bacon show will be held in connection with annual Stockmen's Week from February 20 to 24 at the University of California farm at Davis. Liberal premiums will be offered at the show for the best home-cured ham and bacon. The show is to be held under the auspices of the California Swine Breeders' association. Further details can be obtained from E. H. Hughes, secretary of the association, Davis, Calif.

Dairy Building to be Constructed

With the $195,000 appropriation from the board of regents of the University of California and additional funds from the last legislature, a dairy industrial building will be constructed at the University of California farm at Davis. The state legislature in 1917 appropriated funds for a building for the dairy industry department but the United States entering the war at that time made it undesirable to start its construction.

The building will consist of a 2-story main structure of hollow tile, 234 feet long and with a dairy manufacturing wing running back 128 feet from one end of the main building. The first floor of the building will include laboratory for butter and market milk, commercial testing, student testing, farm dairy and bacteriology, and a sales room, offices and student locker room. The second floor will be occupied by three lecture rooms, seminar, reading and dairy products judging rooms, and office and storage space. The manufacturing wing will house the large creamery laboratory which will be used for teaching advanced students and those electing practice work in butter, cheese, ice cream, market milk and milk condensing.

A distinctive feature of the new dairy building is the provision for small units of equipment in each department, making it possible for each student to work independently. The increased equipment will make it possible for instructors to teach larger sections, thus accommodating a larger number of students.

Sunflower Silage in Experiments

Sunflower silage is comparatively new to most farmers in California. The University of California farm at Davis is now conducting experiments with this type of feed in comparison with corn silage. During Stockmen's Week dairymen will hear of the experimental feeding of sunflower silage as conducted by W. E. Tomson, in charge of the University herd.

Meetings of the Dairy Cattle clubs of California, discussion of dairy topics by leading authorities, and a pure-bred bull sale are other features which will be of interest to dairymen during Stockmen's Week at the University farm at Davis.

Use for Cull and Waste Pears

An excellent "spread" from cull pears has been devised by J. H. Frish, chemist of fruit products at the University of California agricultural experiment station. This "spread" promises an outlet for enoromous quantities of cull and waste peafs in the Sacramento valley district. This means of utilizing what was formerly a waste product should prove a new source of revenue to pear growers and to Sacramento and Bay City canneries.

Dean Hunt to Talk on Europe

Facts of interest relative to agricultural conditions in Europe will be told by Dean Thomas F. Hunt, of the University of California college of agriculture, on February 21 at the University farm.

Dean Hunt spent many months in Europe after the close of the war making an exhaustive study of conditions there. Because of the fact that world conditions touch the farmer of today, no matter how remote he may be from the center of things, the discussion by Dr. Hunt is expected to bring much of real value to his audience.

Dean Hunt is at present in Washington, D. C., conferring with agriculturists of nation-wide authority. He will return in time for Stockmen's Week at the University farm and will undoubterly bring back a message to the farmers of California from Washington.

Bulletin on Freezing Problems

Bulletin 304 of the University of California Agricultural Experiment Station should be of timely interest to growers of citrus fruits. This important bulletin by H. J. Weber, professor of citrioulture, will be of service to growers in handling the problems in connection with this winter's freeze. A copy of bulletin 304 will be sent free by addressing the College of Agriculture, Berkley, California.

Texas Cattleman to Speak

Frank S. Hastings, one of the most noted cattlemen in the United States, will speak February 21 at the University of California farm at Davis. Mr. Hastings is from the famous S. M. S. ranch of Texas, which is one of the most extensive cattle domains the industry has known.

Mr. Hastings will discuss "Ways and Means of Improving our Herds and Grazing Conditions." He is recognized as an authority on this subject because of the remarkable progress toward herd improvement and betterment of range conditions which have been made on the big Texas ranch.

Experimental Work on Cattle

Gordon H. True, professor of animal husbandry at the University of California College of Agriculture, will tell of the progress of experimental work in the feeding of range cattle during Stockmen's Week at the university farm. He will be assisted by C. E. Howell, assistant professor of animal husbandry of the state university.

The report of these two professors is a feature of the program of the week. The work being done is of great importance since it is intended to disclose an economical method of preventing loss of cattle due to sparse ranges and overstocking in dry years.

Hog Auctions and Methods of Maketing

The story of how the Farm Bureau has been able to work out a successful plan of marketing hogs will be told by Roy M. Filcher of Corcoran, California, on February 23 at the University of California farm at Davis.

Filcher was largely responsible for the organization of the San Joaquin Valley bureau auction sales for hogs. These sales have been running for more than two years now with highly satisfactory results to the hog raisers.

One of the most remarkable features of this auction plan is the fact that on many occasions prices paid at the California auctions exceeded those paid on the Chicago market the same day. Prior to the coming of the auction plan California prices always were below the Chicago prices.

Consignment Sales of Pure-Bred Live Stock

Three consignment sales of pure-bred livestock will be held during Stockmen's Week from February 21 to 23 inclusive at the University of California farm at Davis. The Pacific Coast Hereford Breeders sale will be held Tuesday afternoon; the California Shorthorn Breeders sale on Wednesday afternoon and the California Poland China Breeders sale will be held Thursday afternoon.

EXPERT AIRMEN ON THE STAFF OF GEN. WRIGHT

Accompany Commander of Manila Forces to Philippines

SAN FANCISCO, Feb. 24.—Twelve expert airmen form part of the party acompanying Major General William M. Wright to Manila, where General Wright becomes commander of the Philippines department.

The airmen were recently detailed to the Philippines in order to strengthen the Asiatic Air Service. Some months ago a large number of De Haviland airplanes of the latest type were sent to Manila. The planes are at present in hangars, but General Wright plans to take them "out to air" as soon as he arrives with his airmen. The party is now enroute.

NOODLES FAGAN AT T. D. & L. THEATRE

The vaudeville lovers of Glendale will be glad to know that the vaudeville road show which Meiklejohn & Dunn are bringing to the T. D. and L. theatre today and tomorrow has as its headliner the favorite comedian of the Pantages circuit, Noodles Fagan. Assisted by his talented partner, Elsie, and the wonder child o fthe stage, little Mary, this roly-poly fellow will make Glendale laugh as it has never laughed before.

Noodles is known from coasts to coast for his fun-making and he has toured the Pantages circuit many times. His comedy, all of his own, contains more laughs to the minute than any other offering on the stage today.

Many of the latest songs of the day are used in their offering but best of all are the songs of 20 years ago, which this trio sings so effectively.

Although only a child in years, little Mary, like Jackie Coogan, performs in a manner that is astounding for one of her years.

In addition to the five vaudeville acts of exceptional merit, "Nobody," the First National mystery story will be the film attraction.

NORTH BRAND BUSINESS PROPERTY AT ONE-FOURTH VALUE, AS COMPARED TO SIMILAR PROPERTY IN OTHER LOCATIONS
Glendale is "V" shape, expanding to the north. The best residential district is north of Colorado, therefore, the business district will move northward. Glendale is building towards the mountains, like Hollywood.
We believe the "wise" investor, who buys North Brand NOW at the low price of $150 to $300 per front foot, will more than double his money in the next two years, as similar properties in Hollywood and other successful locations, have recently sold for more than four times the price quoted above.
We are exclusive agents for 25 (1250 feet) North Brand business lots, including some very desirable corners.

READ THE "DAILY PRESS" FOR ALL THE NEWS ALL THE TIME.

An actor in one of the Broadway theaters once gave the name of one of Dr. Houghton's curates as reference in a business transaction. The merchant made haste to the Little Church Around the Corner and preferred his request for particulars concerning the financial standing and reliability of his proposed customer. "Indeed," said the reverend gentleman, hastily, "I can give you no guaranty; I have merely a desultory acquaintance with the gentleman, as he is not a member of our church."

"Why, that's very strange," said the merchant, perplexedly. "He told me that he came here regularly."

"He does," returned the curate with a reminiscent smile: "he always gets me to marry him."

A WEAK SPINE

A deformed, rigid, and out of shape spine, is the cause of many internal afflictions. It is manifested by wry neck, unevenly drooped shoulders, protruding shoulder blade, stooping and sway back, one high hip seemingly due to a short leg; even difficulties of the lower limbs, joints, and feet are due to such weakness; a drawing pain in the back, hip and thighs is symtomatic. The Earthling

By JOHN BRECK

Has the song of the plough ever been set to music, I wonder? There is the little treble plaint played on the strings of the snapping grass roots, muted by the curving breaker of earth which follows the whispering share. There is the staccato bass of hoofbeats, the creak of collars, the jangle of trace chains, all rhythmically repeating into monotonous tune. A setting for minor incident, it is. It does not lull you; rather, it puts a point on trifling things, carries a note of eerie, whimsical expectancy.

You guess it was in some such mood as this that Robert Burns unhoused his field mouse. Yet a mouse, after all, is not a true born inhabitant of the underworld between the sod and the sterile subsoil which never feels the life-giving touch of the sun. More likely 'twill be he who pokes a puzzled head from the next clod you kick from behind the knife.

It is saddle colored and bald; the broad, bland insect face beneath it is that of what is known as a Jerusalem cricket, though he has no claim to either name. He is dressed in ochre and left brown; he gleams with the glossy varnish of the earth gnomes, and two little bristly tails pricked up behind suggest that he travels stern first, like a gopher, down his burrow, when necessity demands. He could never turn round in it. For he is armored, from the wide lobster shield on the back of his neck (doubtless it keeps the sand from sifting down his collar) to the last mailed body segment. The spiny bracelets at each joint of his legs are much as sea things wear. He looks like some fantastic relic of the times before the oceans had drained away, who had learned to live on the scanty moisture of the soil. He seems no more shaped by the dense medium he moves in than the air-flying duck by the waters where they plunge. How much more convenient if he had adopted the yielding tactics of the earth worm!

But he never would. His set gaze is too unobservant. From the corner of each eye a long antenna, like a single eyelash, rolls in its socket. He wags one in the admonitory fashion of a forefinger. Smooths his coat-tails, comments on the emptiness of the air. It seem different, somehow, yet he has always taken things exactly as they are.

Not till the robber shrike impales him, weakly kicking, on a barb of the fence wire, does he seem to grasp that they are not always as they should be. And the bird's triumphant shriek is the startling-climax to your tune.

What everybody knows is that the world's wealth never will be distributed fairly until everybody has an automobile as good as everybody else's.

No sweeter music than a real colored male quartet. Also violin and piano solos, Friday evening. M. E. church.—(Adv.)

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

THE LITTLE CHILDREN

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

Tony was a baby from the slums. He had a twisted back—and the sweetest smile in the world. And Tony was only one of the little children with twisted bones and distorted little bodies. He was one of the fortunate ones, for he was being taken care of. And science, a little late, perhaps, was doing all that could be done for Tony. His back would be a little straighter, and possibly the time would come when, instead of hitching his misshapen little body along the unclean pavement, he would be able to walk with crutches. To walk—out in the fields where the clover was unbelievably pink and sweet, the sky above unbelieveably deep and blue.

Tony's smile was sweeter than ever when the pretty woman who had adopted him came each day to visit him in the big hospital ward. He did not quite understand about the fields and the clover, but she said it was a place like heaven. And Tony had gone to Sunday school. So he lay and smiled, and endured the heavy splint that was straightening his back.

The Pretty Woman Weeps

"That child's beauty haunts me. It is unearthly in its beauty," said the pretty woman, wiping tears from her eyes as she and her doctor-husband went back to their car one afternoon after a visit to the little orphan lad they had adopted.

"Their smiles are all like that, these little neglected children," said her husband gravely. "Do you wonder that science has declared an unending fight against the tragedy of the tenements, the tragedy of airlessness and ignorance, and sunless babyhood, that sends little twisted bodies like Tony's to our hospitals in thousands?"

"I marvel at the wonder of knowledge more and more each day I live," the woman said softly. "But would air and sunshine and happiness have made such a difference to Tony, in the beginning?" ?

The doctor drove his car rather furiously past a friendly policeman.

"Perhaps not. I don't know who his mother was. Had she known the importance of sunlight and cleanliness and fresh air to her baby, it might have helped his twisted little bones. But if she, too, was reared in the slums her idea of the sky and sunlight may have been the narrow panels of blue that one sees between the roofs, sometimes. Not wide, sunswept spaces of the out-of-doors, as we know it."

"All the uninformed mothers do not live in such places," mused the doctor's wife. "There are so many women, it seems to me, who fail to appreciate the importance of sunlight and cleanliness to little children. Think of the women who smother their children in unnecessary wrappings, who bind the little bodies with flannel bands that interfere with the freedom of the little chests. Of the self-satisfied woman who scorn the thought of a flannel band having anything to do with the circulation of blood and air through the lungs of a baby. How calmly such women dismiss such things as 'fads' when one tries to talk about them. They say, 'What was good enough for babies in my mother's day is good enough for them now.'"

Only Sane Thinking, After All

The doctor nodded, understandingly. He had known many such women, and despaired of teaching them the rudiments of child welfare and common sense hygiene.

"Too many mothers scorn reason until it is too late," he said. "Nothing brings their carelessness home to them so poignantly as a little white head-stone over a child's grave. And yet, it is so simple to treat a little child like a tender, growing plant. Lots of sunlight and fresh air, cleanliness, room to breathe, freedom for its limbs and muscles, plain, pure food, carefully prepared, lots of sleep and play. It's only sane thinking, after all. But it means health."

A CEST BINDER

"Poultices of any kind are bad enough," wailed the boy who had fallen in a hockey game and cut his shoulder and back rather badly on a splintered railing that had rusty nails in it. "But when a fellow is simply wrapped in them it's worse than ever. Poultices and hot dressings and safety pins and bandages all around in the bed—I tell you it's fierce!"

And his mother, who was carrying poultices and steaming dressings up and down stairs faithfully, when the clock struck the hour, sighed a little, and said, as mothers will:

"I know it's trying, dear, but just try to bear it."

"And be thankful you didn't have an eye put out," said little sister Jane helpfuly. Jane had never been swathed in steaming poultices and bandages, and she did not know how uncomfortable it was.

And about this time came an aunt, who had boys of her own. She brought her knitting and offered to spend the afternoon and apply poultices while Howard's mother went on a shopping tour.

When the first dressing was due, Howard's aunt promptly put her knitting away, and started downstairs, calling back over her shoulder:

"You can take the safety pins out while I'm downstairs."

There being no safety pins to take out, Howard was mystified until his aunt arrived with the poultice. Then she explained.

"I thought you would have a chest binder on," she said.

"What is a chest binder?" the boy asked.

"I'll illustrate," said his aunt mysteriously, going into his mother's sewing room and returning with scissors, a strip of muslin long enough to go around the boy's body, and a handful of safety pins.

The strip was wide enough to reach from Howard's shoulders to his waist. His aunt shaped it to fit under his arms, snipping armholes with skillful, shining scissors.

When she had finished cutting, the strip had two narrow shoulder straps and circular places that fitted comfortably around the boy's arms. As Howard laughingly said, like a strait-jacket, especially after the hot dressings were applied, and the chest binder had been pinned down the front with many safety pins.

"It can't slip," said his aunt, pinning the straps at the shoulder, and surveying the comfortable-looking bandage with satisfaction.

"I'll say it feels better," said Howard. "Snug and smooth, and no slipping. No more hunting for dressings in the bed when it is time to change them."

"That's just one of its advantages. Another is that the dressings stay hot almost twice as long when they are securely pinned in place," said his aunt, going back to her knitting.

To Check Suicide

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

With a view to obtaining definite light on the basic causes of suicide—hence on the possibility of lowering the suicide rate—Dr. A. W. Stearns, a Boston physician, has been making for the National Committee for Mental Hygiene an analytical study of suicide. His findings, though concerned chiefly with suicide in Massachusetts, are of general interest and significance.

Seventy years ago, he notes, the suicide rate in Massachusetts was 4.9 per 100,000 population. It is now about 14 per 100,000. So that in Massachusetts, as in other parts of the country, there has of recent years been a really alarming increase in suicide.

Dr. Stearns finds, moreover, that the suicide rate has always been higher among city dwellers than among dwellers in country districts. He rightly concludes that at least a partial explanation of the rate's steady rise is to be found in the fact that throughout the period studied by him there has been a great increase in city population and a decrease in rural population.

But he insists that factors other than "pressure of city life" must also be at work, the Massachusetts suicide rate, as a whole, being higher than the early Boston rate. These other factors, his researches lead him to believe, include:

1. A hyperesthetic condition, or increased sensitiveness to stress, "Our demands are more, and what our ancestors took as a matter of course we regard as a hardship."

2. Increased liability to mental disease. "Mental disease, or insanity, is by far the greatest single factor in suicide. . . . Individuals who commit suicide form a selected group, one-third of whom are frankly insane, while most of the others show some limitation of responsibility."

3. Increased condonation of suicide by public sentiment. Concerning this Dr. Stearns remarks:

"Undoubtedly the pressure of public opinion, as expressed by law and church restriction, has had a restraining influence. Suicides have actually been buried ignominiously in the highway in Massachusetts, and many have been refused the rites of the church.

"A hundred years ago sermons against suicide were thundered from the Protestant pulpit; now many clergymen secretly condone the act. From this it would appear that change of custom is represented by an increased suicide rate."

Consequently it is not surprising to find Dr. Stearns suggesting, as one possible maens of preventing suicide, education to revive public sentiment against suicide. Also, as an obviously necessary measure, he advocates energetic campaigning to lessen the occurrence of insanity and to insure early remedial treatment for the mentally sick.

Oddly enough, however, he fails to urge specifically one measure which his own findings show, in my opinion, to be the most necessary of all anti-suicide measures—namely, education for character building.

If the people of today are more hyperesthetic, more sensitive to stress, than were their ancestors, this is not merely because modern conditions put a greater strain on their nervous systems. It is also because, with increasing national wealth, there has come an increasing tendency to laxness of thinking and living—a tendency which character training alone can combat successfully.

SEVENTH UNIT AT

FAIRVIEW

Large Lots as Low as $394

Up to $665—None higher

A cash down payment as low as $25, and monthly payments from $10 to $15 per month will secure your lot in this beautiful tract.

The preopening of the seventh unit of Fairview last Sunday resulted in people coming from far and near and selecting more than one-third of the homesites offered.

Fairview is located on a beautiful slope in the famous Northwest section of Glendale, one block from the P. E. car line and about one-half mile from the magnificent estate of L. C. Brand.

For desirability Fairview lots must not be confused with any other subdivision. They are not low, or damp; they have good drainage, rich, sandy loam soil, close to the new Grand View School, stores, churches, etc., and yet priced so low they will astonish you for this class of property.

No district or values like this in all Glendale. Come out and see for yourself.

Don't waste your money paying rent, buy a lot, put up a temporary home 50 feet back from the street, and live in it at once.

An immense development is taking place at Fairview, over sixty homes have been built by our purchasers and lots in the first unit are already selling for $200 more than they cost a few months ago.

Neighboring lots are being sold at from $825 to $1450, but we do not believe in asking the highest price for this beautiful property; we want our purchasers to make money and it is a source of great satisfaction to us that resales in our earlier units are showing handsome profits in so short a time.

The lots in this seventh unit are selling fast. Don't delay. Come out today or come out Sunday if you can't before.

Drive out West Broadway and San Fernando Road, to Vine Avenue; then one block up to tract headquarters at Vine Avenue and Fourth Street. Our cars will leave 203 West Broadway at 10 o'clock Sunday morning, and 2 o'clock p. m.

POST AND COIN ARE PROBLEMS OF IRISH

DUBLIN (By Mail to the United Press).—Currency and postage reform are two immediate problems to be solved when the provisional government gets down to consecutive preparation for the new Free State.

Intensive work on the effecting of the prospective free state itself, and assuring its approval at the polls, has prevented so far much attention to details, but when it is ready to function as a free state, Ireland must have its own currency and postage.

Now, in addition to the notes of the Bank of Ireland, the only currency is British. All coins are British. Both the Bank of Ireland and the Bank of England are private institutions, though under royal charter. When the new free state is set up, there must be gold and silver coinage. There must also be government paper of small denominations. Both the silver notes and the copper, silver and gold coins will be a departure for Ireland. With their issue will come the problem of their denomination. It is improbable any change will be made at present. It is probable that the present system will be maintained for a time, and that present coins and notes will be christened with Irish names. In that case, nearly everyone will call them by their English names—at least, until a new generation grows up. A change to the decimal system will probably come later.

Several solutions have been offered for the postage stamp problem. For the time being, it is likely the British stamp will be used, with an Irish inscription super-imposed.

It was getting late and the atmosphere of the card room at the club was thick with tobacco smoke. A rubber had just been concluded at one of the tables and one of the players remarked to his partner: "It must be getting on, Charles. How's the enemy?"

Charles took out his watch and, having yawned, replied: "H'm, I reckon she'll be fast asleep by now!"

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS IGNORE NEWSPAPERS

Questionnaire Shows Pupils Are Ignorant of Current Events

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Would Lincoln at high school age have earned more than 41 per cent in a current events test about persons, places, and problems of national concern to his time? Would he have been better trained for citizenship if he had been given a high school course, "1922 model"? Can education train for better citizenship without training for competent study of current history?

The foregoing questions are asked by the Institute for Public Service in its summary of 20,000 replies to the second Review of Reviews national current history test, which was taken last month by over 200,000 high school students in all parts of the country. In all, 79 questions were asked calling for short answers to show why persons, places and problems of importance were being currently discussed. Persons included Lloyd George, Mellon, De Balera and Briand; places included Arlington, where the Unknown Soldier was buried, India in revolution, Ulster in opposition to free Ireland, West Virginia in the midst of coal strikes; pictures to identify included Harding, Ford, Foch; facts frequently wanted included the meaning of open "shop" and what soldiers were asking congress to give them.

Returns from several schools show that the same definiteness of memory and understanding that is expected in chemistry courses can be obtained in current events work. A class of 44 pupils in a St. Louis eighth grade made an average mark of 92 per cent; every child except one in the class making above 70 per cent; and a seventh year class of 43 children made an average of 82 per cent, with only 6 pupils below the mark of 70 per cent.

But of 1,580,000 possible right answers, 648,000 or 41 per cent were marked right by teachers themselves, and 932,000 or 59 per cent were wrong or unanswered. By 20,000 students, over 90 per cent was scored by 115; from 80 per cent to 89 per cent by 583; over 80 per cent by 698; from 70 to 79 per cent by 1,234; over 70 per cent by 1,932; under 60 per cent by 15,400, or nearly four-fifths the total number. Of 200,000 possible right answers ten questions about sports and movies, 92,000 or only 46 per cent were right.

"The results," said Julius H. Barnes of the Institute for Public Service, "show not only that 59 per cent of the answers were either wrong or missing, but also that foggy nations and blank ignorance about current events are due to something else besides lack of student interest in the subject themselves. Fewer senior boys failed on De Valera, Briand, Leonard Wood and Lloyd George than on who won the World Series or the star actor in the Three Musketeers. More girl seniors knew about Sinn Fein and the proposed soldier bonus than about Suzanne Lenglen and Ruth Law. When thousands of the country's high school students and even graduating classes miss three out of five questions about universally advertised sports, it shows that liking does not necessarily mean understanding or using."

The ten questions about out-of-school topics called for definite knowledge on universal front-page and street-corner figures—Babe Ruth's home runs, winner of the world series, Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the small college that defeated Harvard in football, the star actor in The Three Musketeers, the best batting average in each of the two big baseball leagues, Ruth Law, in what games a quarterback is found, Christy Mathewson, and a much discussed book which gives a detailed story of a small town.

Conceding that possibly Robinson Crusoe was answered to this last question as a joke, continues the report, the fact remains that 48 per cent of the seniors did not think of Main Street. Conceding that too few questions appealed to the special interest of girls, the fact remains that of senior boys 35 per cent did not know who won the world series, 50 per cent did not know how many home runs Babe Ruth made, 35 per cent forgot that Centre was the small college which recently defeated Harvard's football team, and not Yale, Princeton or Cornell. Moreover, 46 per cent of girl seniors did not know the French woman tennis champion who had been so universally discussed; 60 per cent did not know Ruth Law, 32 per cent did not know the hero of an everywhere advertised movie, while 79 per cent did not know who the only congresswoman is.

"The significant fact," the report declares, "is not so much the not knowing at all as the believing what is entirely wrong. It is better never to have heard of Mlle. Lenglen than to say that she is a French chemist, or represented Japan at the disarmament conference, or is the only woman in our congress. It is better to have no idea of Christy Mathewson than to say that he sold out the World Series in 1920, is a noted comedian or went on an expedition to the south pole. Such use of opportunity and experience never made a Lincoln.

"That four out of five did not know who ratified the peace treaty with Germany is less serious than that half of them believed Wilson ratified it. Not to know who was recently appointed chief justice may not be a menace to democracy but surely any high school senior is a liability who in 1922 believes that Theodore Roosevelt or John Marshall has recently been appointed chief justice. Just what kinds of benefit are favored children getting from high school history, or from their other expensive instruction, who believe that Leonard Wood is governor-general of Philadelphia; that Manila is a port in Cuba; that congress has just voted against substituting a reliable tax for a total tax; that Stinnes is leader of the Klu Klux Klan; De Valera an Italian general; Lloyd George king of England, and Pershing a French general visiting America or a renowned general in our Civil War."

A special study was made of 72 college freshmen to find out why they made an average mark of only 43 per cent with only 7 students scoring more than 70 per cent; 29 do not read a daily paper; 15 never read a magazine of current history: One college class that spends 45 minutes every week on current topics made an average of 71 per cent, another giving 40 minutes a week made 47 per cent.

If teachers themselves do not read and learn definitely current history of importance, their students can hardly be expected to do so. In one normal school 553 students who will next year teach 535 classes averaged 25 per cent. One student out of the entire class made more than 70 per cent. Another teacher training school with 50 students made an average of 35 per cent.

In this second national current history test low grades cannot be explained by inattention at school, for the average time which 20,000 students are spending on current events is forty minutes a week. That over 200,000 in school and college work took this one test shows nationwide attention.

It has cost from two to three million dollars in money and time, says the report, to educate the 1000 high school seniors of whom 630 did not know the meaning of "open shop"; 250 could not mention an item of current interest connected with Washington where a disarmament conference was in session; 970 could not recognize the picture of the United States commissioner of education; 690 could not recognize Root; 490 did not know who H. G. Wells is; 800 did not know the much advertised federal budget director, Dawes; 430 did not know that Hoover was chairman of the national Unemployment Conference although school all over the country had accepted the chairman's invitation to cooperate and almost 1000 were unable to mention two suggestions made by that conference.

"What does it mean that three of a hundred high school seniors do not know who Pershing is," asks Mr. Barnes in concluding the report, "and that four out of a hundred cannot recognize a picture of President Harding? With such imperviousness to important facts and problems that are everywhere in the air, what are they doing with science, geography, and history taught in schools? If our government and Mr. Ford can get nitrogen out of the air at Muscle Shoals, surely there is some way that proper training in newspaper reading can get head and tail out of important current history.

"If the only purpose of a current history test were to find out what it is easy for young people to answer, it must be admitted that a 41 per cent average by 20,000 high school children in all parts of the country show a too-hard examination. From the standpoint of a business man, however, the failure of 71 per cent of the country's picked young people, to know who their own state's school executive is does not prove it a mistake for a test to ask who that executive is; on the contrary it suggests the desirability of expecting high school students to know about state school policies. For over 50 per cent of high school seniors who will vote in three years not to know who is secretary of the treasury at this critical time when problems affecting the whole world depend for solution largely upon his leadership, surely proves the wisdom of having this question in a test and of high school training which enables pupils to answer the question.

"The first step in training students to study current events properly is for schools to require current events be taught properly—not merely to stimulate imagination but to train in qualities and interests that make for informed and straight thinking citizenship."

La Crescenta

LA CRESCENTA, Feb. 24.—H. S. Bissell reports 1.88 inches of rainfall during the last storm ending Monday at 5 p. m., making a total of 33.85 inches for the season. The sun on the snow-covered mountains and a rainbow, were among the beautiful features of the storm.

The trustees of the La Crescenta school announce work will begin on the enlargement of the present school immediately. A. B. Tirrill of Pasadena is the contractor. The architects are Train & Williams of Los Angeles, but Charles A. Creeth, a resident of La Crescenta, who is connected with Train & Williams did practically all of the work. Out of the money voted by the bonds the trustees have purchased three and three-quarter acres to add to the present holdings of one and one-quarter acres, making a total of five acres for the school grounds. The auditorium will be enlarged to the size of the present room and stage, and the new stage will be the size of the present one. There will be three new rooms, two rooms to be used as recitation rooms, and one as a study room. Mr. Tirrill expects to have the building completed by the opening of the school in fall. The present efficient school board is composed of Homer A. Baldridge, C. E. Culberson and Dr. B. H. Smith.

Alfred Noyes, the English poet, was greatly annoyed last term at Princeton by a hoary old chestnut that some jealous American poet resurrected and affixed to him. Poet Noyes, according to this story, invited a publisher's reader to come to Princeton and pass on a volume of manuscript poetry. The reader duly came and Mr. Noyes ensconced him in an easy chair and proceeded to read him the volume of poems. A half hour passed, an hour, and Mr. Noyes, hearing an odd, gurgling sound, looked up and saw that the publisher's reader was asleep. "Here, sir," he said sharply. "Wake up. I invited you to Princeton to give an opinion on my verses. How can you give an opinion when you're asleep?" "Sleep," said the publisher's reader with a great yawn—"sleep is an opinion."

FLUKE-SLASHER HAS A PLOT

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"Yes," Dr. Muskrat reflected, "it was their tails that saved the First Muskrats—or Mouserats, as folks were beginning to call them in those days—for a second time. If their tails hadn't been squeezed out flat from holding their little grass nest in their little thorn-tree all through the wild weather of the Big Flood, the whale would have swallowed them, sure as an oriole swallows cabbage worms. Because he'd have been sure they lied to him when they said Shem didn't have them aboard his Dad's mussy old Ark. And the old he-seal, who hated mice, wouldn't have put in a word to save them.

"'Your'e sure Shem hasn't any of these?' Fluke-Slasher asked.

"The seal shook his head. 'Uh-uhn,' he grunted. 'Nary a one. These look like they could swim, and I've heard those mice brag they had no use for water, not even to drink. Acshully! The dirty little things!'

"You can guess how my great-grandparents felt then. Swim! They had never dreamed of trying. And they'd come to feel that if ever the Big Flood went down enough for them to set paw on dry land they had all the water they'd need for a life-time. But they did not dare say anything.

"'Now you see what I was diving at,' went on the whale. 'That Shem had the conceit to pretend I couldn't come through this bit of a cloudburst we've just had without help from him. Delightful, I call it! It's given me the chance I've always wanted to see the earth. But that's what he said—to me, who invented the sea! Of course it's no wonder I came through it, but I'm goin gto show him these little minnows in fur and prove what a liar he is.'

"'Just what I've planned,' said the seal. Then, of course, he told

"Your'e sure Shem hasn't any of these?" Fluke-Slasher asked.

all about the squirrel and the beaver who were keeping house on their oak tree raft. 'But there's no catch in it,' says he. 'Where is the Ark?'

"'Sho!' Fluke-Slasher snorts. 'I'll hunt it up if it's on the other side of the world.'

"'Meanwhile,' objects the seal, 'these will float off. I can't keep track of them—by the Great Salt Billows! I've got a notion. You pick up any one you find and I'll do the same and we'll take them all to my tree—it's big enough to hold 'em. We'll have something to show Shem when we do see him.'"

NEXT STORY: THE FIRST MUSKRAT HOUSE.

They are most sparing of their words in the country. They just smoke and think, and sometimes they just smoke, but always they weigh their words carefully.

An old rustic toddling along a country lane came upon a friend digging.

For a moment he stood and watched the worker in silence, his hand on his pipe and his teeth gripping its stem.

"Well, George," he essayed at last, "be you digging a hole out?"

George looked up.

"No," he answered, "I be just digging the dirt out and leaving the hole."

BUY A DIRECTORY CARD

AH, HERE ARE THOSE LOVELY NEW SPRING HATS!

These are examples of some of milady's headgear that will be seen before trees are budded. From left to right are shown a French creation of straw and cloth, the crown of straw and the brim of cloth lacquered apples providing the trimmings. On the right is a turban of imported glace haircloth, trimmed with three "love birds," with blue tails and bodies, green wings, orange heads and black bills. The middle one a mandarin hat of periwinkle georgette. The trimmings are of coral "matchstick" beads.

If heaven were to be won only by achievements it would be a frightfully lonesome place.

Some people try to console themselves in the hour of their misfortune by saying "There are others."

No man ever worries half as much about his inability to pay his debts as the men he owes do.

Did you ever notice how easy it is to dispense cheap sympathy and how hard it is when it costs something besides words?

When a man is advised to "take a change and rest," the doctor takes the change while the patient takes the rest.

THESE BEAUTIFUL FUR GARMENTS WERE ADMIRED BY THRONGS IN FIFTH AVENUE

Dame Fashion, in her announcements as to the latest modes, highly approves many elaborate and expensive furs. These smart models, worn by New York women, were photographed recently on Fifth avenue. At the left is a $25,000 chinchilla cape. That fur is very popular this season. At the right is a garment that obeys the decree that gowns and coats have as much white as possible. Ermine is highly favored. This model is of white ermine trimmed with sealskin.

The Once Over

THE VILLAGE DRUNKARD—THEN AND NOW

By H. I. PHILLIPS

In the Old Days

Scene: A rural community.

Characters: A woozy native letting himself "steep" in the sun. A prominent citizen. A visitor.

Visitor (pointing): Who's that bird with the beezer like a Baltimore oriole's breast?

P. C.: That's the Village Drunkard.

Visitor: They oughta lock him up. The idea of going through life doin' nuthin' but getting drunk! 'Sterrible!

P. C.: We lock him ev'ry now 'nd then. Don't do no good—he's just hopeless.

Today

Scene and characters the same.

Visitor: Look at that feller over there on the postoffice steps with a glorious skinful. Gee, but he's well oiled!

P. C.: Doncher know him?

Visitor: No, who is he?

P. C.; He's the Village Drunkard of this place!

Visitor (in amazement): You don't say so! How interesting!

P. C.: Yes, sir; he's like that every day.

Visitor (with a note of envy): The lucky dog! How does he do it?

P. C.: I wish I knew. 'Sfunny how this town has changed in its attitude toward him. We all used to just point him out as a horrible example. We'd lock him up every little while and hold him in general contempt. Then came the Volstead amendment. It stopped nearly everybody in this place drinking, but the Village Drunkard. He's managed to keep drunker than ever. Now we are all cultivatin' him and trying to find out where he gets it. But the old boy is wise to us. He remembers the slurs he had to stand for so many years, and so now he just keeps tight, sits in the sun and grins at us as if to say: "Don't you wish you knew my bootlegger?"

P. C.: By jove, this is wonderful. I'd like to meet him.

Visitor: Come on over. I'll introduce you.

(The introduction takes place and the visitor proceeds to interview the Village Drunkard.)

Visitor: I've just heard about you, and I'm tremendously interested in the story of your success.

Village Drunkard: Success?

Visitor: Yes, your success has really been remarkable. You have accomplished that which so many of us have found impossible. You set out to maintain a certain standard and you have succeeded against every obstacle. I'd really like to hear your story.

V. D.: Well, I don't mind telling it. I promised my story to The American Magazine—they are running a success series, you know, but I'll give it to you. The secret of success is stick-to-it-iveness. * * * Make up your mind what you want to be and be it. * * * Don't be annoyed by things of secondary importance.

You must fix your eye on your goal and keep it there. Remain steadfast. Don't wabble. Don't let people argue you away from your convictions. In the words of a great American, "Be sure you are right, then go ahead."

Above all, don't be discouraged by obstacles. When the Volstead amendment came, ruin seemed to stare me in the face. The business I had built up during a lifetime—the business of drinking—seemed about to collapse. Was I disheartened? No!

I just gritted my teeth and began to drink harder than ever. Today my accomplishments in my chosen line of endeavor make those of the first forty years of my life seem trivial by comparison. People used to scoff at me. They even shunned me. They've only come to realize during the past two years that drinking is a positive achievement. I confidently expect to hang up a new record during the present year. I have certainly succeeded where millions of men have failed, and I am very widely envied because I still know where to get it.

Visitor: You are a very remarkable man. Would you mind letting me have your name?

V. D.: Just put me down as Village Drunkard and remember what I'm tellin' you, in the bright demijohn of youth there is no such word as "fail."

THE RADIOPHONE CRAZE

Have you a little radio set in your home?

Are you in on the broadcasting craze?

No? Di mi, you don't know what you're missing. Not to be in on the "Nightly Broadcast" is not to be well informed. One-half the world may not know how the other half is living, but it now comes pretty near to knowing what the other half is SAYING.

* * *

All you need is a little instrument about the size of a bootblack's box looped up with the proper antennae on the roof. Then you may sit down, put the receiver to your ear, and hear a band concert at Miami, a lecture on the boll weevil in Masonic Hall, Charleston, S. C.; a zither selection by a Hungarian boy marvel in Back Bay, Boston; a talk on bogus bottle labels by William J. Bryan before the Odd Fellows of Chicago; the results of the boxing bouts in Newark, N. J., and tomorrow's weather prediction from the local forecaster.

From which any dumbbell can see that the age of secrecy is past. It isn't safe now for a New York man visiting Los Angeles to knock his wife above a whisper there. She may have a little radio in her home.

* * *

Very soon the declaration: "I'll tell the world," no longer will be a threat; a man won't be able to say anything out loud without telling the world.

And this broadcasting thing is in its infancy. Very soon everybody will be broadcasting. Wives will be broadcasting for Husbands-Who-Haven't-Shown-Up-for-Dinner!

* * *

Husbands-Who-Have-Shown-Up-for-Dinner will be paging Wives-Who-Have-Failed-to-Show-Up-to-Prepare it.

It will be possible for the Missus to turn a little lever and page all the "speak-easies" her husband frequents.

"Annybuddy seen John Jenks? * * * Annybuddy seen John Jenks? * * * Annybuddy seen John Jenks? will be the message broadcast over the drinking districts. "Is this McFadden's Cellar Club? * * * Is this McFadden's Cellar Club? * * * McFadden's Cellar Club? * * * Is that you, John? * * * Put down that liquor! * * * Put down that liquor and come home here at once!"

* * *

Mrs. Slodkins will broadcast Mrs. Doldrums:

"Is my husband sitting up with your husband? * * * Is my husband sitting up with your husband? * * * Answer please * * *answer please."

To which Mrs. Doldrums will reply:

"No * * * Isn't my husband over to your house sitting up with your husband? * * * He told me he was * * * he told me he was."

Alarmists are always scared to death about how weak the "future generations" are going to be, but the future generations so far have been pretty fair.

GRAPE VINES ARE BEING REPLANTED

Ranchers Who Tore Up Vines Are Starting Over Again

CONCORD, Calif., Feb. 24.—Scores of farmers of this district, after having pulled out their grape vines at the commencement of the era of prohibition, are again planting grapes on their property.

This unusual condition is prevailing throughout Contra Costa county because of the fabulous prices commanded by wine grapes since Mr. Volstead consented to make the country dry. Because of the seeming unabated demands for grapes, growers are renewing the crop once destroyed in the belief that the Volstead act spelt ruin for their properties.

In addition to the old ranches renewing their vineyards, more than fifty new ranches have been planted to grapes. The zinfandel, petti bouchet, alicante, and petti sara are the favorite varieties of growers here. In addition, some new stocks have ben imported from France in some cases.

Another cause of the high cost of living in cities is club dues. The average business man belongs to so many things he no longer belongs to himself.

When the "Light Has Gone"

It is an age-old instinct that makes men care for the dust of their fellowmen—that made the Pharaohs build pyramids—that makes us all guard our own with the best that seems fitting to us and to them.

In by-gone days of pomp and ceremony, the occasion of the departure of a loved one was heralded with ostentatious demonstration.

Today—Sympathy, Understanding, Quietness and ready service takes its place as a more fitting symbol of respect. We lose nothing of dignity, and gain greatly in realness and simplicity.

BEGIN WORK ON WORLD'S LARGEST BRIDGE

Actual work on the great suspension bridge over the Delaware river, from Camden, N. J., to Philadelphia, has begun. The first blows marking the opening of the construction were struck by Governor Sproul of Pennsylvania, and Governor Edwards of New Jersey. The opening formalities marked the building of what will be the world's largest suspension bridge, the single span of more than 1700 feet being unsurpassed anywhere in the world. The bridge is expected to be opened for traffic on July 4, 1926. The top photograph shows a model of the great span that marks a new epoch in American enterprise. Below is Governor Edwards of New Jersey, and Governor Sproul of Pennsylvania, who struck the first blows marking the

VALPARAISO TO OPEN HARBOR TO VESSELS

Roadway Has Been Considered Unsafe During Gales

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 24.—Valparaiso, Chile, is making extended plans to provide herself with one of the best harbors on the Pacific coast, according to reports reaching here.

Valparaiso's harbor is at present not safe during a heavy gale. When a norther begins to blow, vessels in the harbor usually put out to sea to avoid being beached.

The government will shortly begin the construction of a series of breakwaters which will make Valparaiso a fine harbor in all weather. Financiers are also making plans for an extensive system of electric railways back into the interior, which will connect directly with the waterfront, aiding in the handling of cargoes.

Valparaiso is now regularly a port of call for the Toyo Kisen Kaisha line vessels, the Grace Steamship company's vessels, and a number of lines out of Atlantic ports to the west coast of South America through the Panama canal. The German Kosmos line may soon start a regular line of vessels, according to reports.

LIQUOR FLOWS IN BAY CITY WHILE JAILS ARE FULL

Two Thousand Four Hundred Cases Are Awaiting Trial

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 24.—If anyone doubts that the Volstead act is being enforced in San Francisco—despite the fact that he can probably get a drink almost anywhere without much trouble—let him look at the calendars of the federal courts of this district, where 2400 prohibition cases are waiting trial—and more piling up daily.

The courts are so congested that many offenders have been arrested five and six times, without having as yet been brought to trial on the first charge.

If all the defendants whose cases are now pending demand jury trials, the calendals of the courts will probably be cleared about the time the Liberty Bond issues mature, somewhere way up in the 1940's.

In numerous cases, judges have held "bargain days," to help in moving the business. They have let off light all those offenders who were on the docket, and who changed their pleas from "not guilty" to "guilty," thus eliminating the jury trial.

Federal judges aren't very pleased with this state of affairs, according to rumor. Before Mr. Volstead made the country unlawfully wet, the federal courts were dignified places, where points of law worthy of high legal minds were involved.

Now, however, the judges complain, most of their time is taken up with bootleg cases, and the federal courts are nothing more nor less than police courts after a fashion, with the same shyster lawyers practicing in them as practice in the police courts.

The federal judges in most cases would like to have the Volstead act amended so as to turn over the run of prohibition cases to the U. S. commissioners' courts for settlement.

Incidentally, the law business has gone booming since prohibition became ineffective.

Many a lawyer who used to struggle along with hardly enough practice to make a living, and not enough brains to help it, is now a "bootleggers' lawyer," obtaining excellent fees from defending bootleggers whenever arrested. It is estimated that the number of lawyers practicing criminal law has jumped 200 percent since the country was legislated dry.

The latest wrinkle of the prohibition enforcement agents is to invoke the "abatement" proceedings, formerly used in "red light" cases, against property owners. Prohibition agents, when they find evidence of bootlegging, will not only arrest those involved, but will formally serve notice on the property owners that if they continue to rent to law-breakers, proceedings will be instituted to close their property for one year, according to the abatement law.

A gentleman was one day visiting a lunatic asylum, and while walking in the grounds he met a patient, to whom he said:

"Well, my good man, how did you get here?"

The lunatic replied as follows:

"Well, sir, you see, I married a widow with a grown-up daughter, and then my father married that same stepdaughter, and that made my wife the mother-in-law of her father-in-law, and my father became my stepson.

"Then my stepmother, the daughter of my wife, had a son, and that boy of course, was my brother, because he was my father's son, but he was also the son of my wife's stepdaughter, and therefore her grandson, and that made me grandfather of my stepbrother.

"Then my wife had a son, so my mother-in-law, the stepsister of my son, is also his grandmother, because he is her stepson's child; my father is the brother-in-law of my child, because his stepsister is his wife; I am the brother of my own son, who is also the son of my step-grandmother; I am my mother's brother-in-law; my wife lates his romantic ideas into terms

REPORT ON SUNSET CLUB CHARGES REASSURING

Alleged Misappropriation of Funds Found to Be Without Base

BURBANK, Feb. 24. — The report of the committee appointed to investigate the charges of misappropriation of funds and misadministration of the Sunset Canyon Country Club has just been made public.

The report is very reassuring inasmuch as it states that after covering every item that was mentioned in the list of charges, it finds that: "There is nothing that should cause any member serious concern, nor any foundation for any drastic action on the part of any members, and it developed during the meeting with Mr. Judah and Mr. Allen that they are very willing to give any information to any member who may want a better understanding of the club."

In the matter of finances the report states "the expenditure of money and the securing of members has been carried out along the lines that were originally planned and the outstanding indebtedness of the club is very small, according to the treasurer's report" and, also "there is every reason to believe that the improvements will be made as originally planned for, and that the members will be enjoying the privileges of the club during the coming summer.

"The committee feels fully justified in recommending to anyone who may not be fully satisfied with the administration of the club, that he take it up direct with Mr. Allen, who we feel sure will be very glad to give attention to any suggestions that may emanate from a large enough number of members to indicate that it is the result of careful thought and consultation and consideration for the interests of the other members of the club. With the work that has been done by the club administration and the attitude as shown in meeting the committee in this matter. We are convinced that the officers of the club have the interests of the members at heart, and are endeavoring to develop the club along the lines of the most benefit to the largest number of members."

The committee is composed of William Roskum, chairman, and Harry B. Watson of Burbank, and C. Stuart Steelman of Glendale.

The club now has a membership of 3400, of which number 2500 are of Los Angeles and the remainder principaly of Pasadena, Hollywood, Glendale and Burbank. The administrative offices are in the Marsh-Strong Bldg., Los Angeles.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance

POLICE SYSTEM IN UNIVERSITY IS ARRAIGNED

Too Much of it Is Undesirable Says Professor Anderson

BERKELEY, Cal., Feb. 24.—That there is too much "police system" in American university education, was the declaration here recently of Adolph E. Anderson, associate professor of the English department of the University of California.

"The American university is at a half way station between the German university and the American high school system," said Anderson. "The English idea of being more mature seems to stimulate individual thought better than the present police system of this country.

"Too many professors think that college students are a little cute and must be watched.

That submitting to four years of boredom in order to obtain a degree is a waste of time, was the declaration of Anderson. Anderson favors greater personal relationship between student and professor. Such relationship is conducive to greater interest in college work, Anderson believes.

"Why make a lumber room of your mind, a dusty attic of no value, when nine-tenths of the facts you learn are forgotten?" asks this highly unusual professor.

SANTA FE PLANS EXPENDITURE OF MILLIONS

$43,150,000 Be Invested in Double Tracking Main Line

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 24.—The Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway system will spend $43,150,000 for improvements, equipment, and a new main line second track and a new branch line track during 1922. The 1921 expenditure was $55,000,000. Of the 1922 expenditures, $11,750,000 will be for the completion of unfinished work; $22,000,000 for new work, including 75 miles of second line track from Yampai to Griffiths, Ariz.; $8,000,000 for new equipment, and $1,400,000 for a new branch line from Satanta, Kan., 51 miles west.

In the construction of the Arizona second track there will be a grade reduction of 75 percent to the mile, saving from 20 to 25 percent in freight train mileage, which amounts to $500,000 per year.

Under favorable conditions, probably $60,000,000 could be profitably spent in developing the Arizona territory alone, according to railroad experts, but financing on such a scale just at present is impossible. However, the Santa Fe intends to make many improvements and extensions in this territory in the next few years.

AUDIENCES DO NOT VARY, LLOYD SAYS

"Audiences don't vary materially," is the observation of Harold Lloyd, the Hal Roach-Associated Exhibitors comedian who continues at the Glendale Theatre today in "A Sailor-Made Man," his first four-reeler.

"There are no set rules as to the psychology of audiences," he says, "but their habits are pretty much the same. They like to be surprised when the surprise takes them utterly unawares. They like to come into the theatre with one set of thoughts and depart with another. They like to be thrilled, but best of all they like to be a part of what they see.

"Give them something that is a pull on their sympathies. Just a gentle tug, and they will back the hero and heroine in all their difficulties. The human touch is what they like, for it reflects something that is their own experience, and that makes it their own picture."

Critics fortunate enough to have already witnessed "A Sailor-Made Man," say it is unusually well provided with that "human touch" that has always been a distinctive mark of the Harold Lloyd comedies.

Because a man in an argument lays his cards all out on the table, it doesn't necessarily mean that the cards are worth laying on the table.

THE EVENING STORY

THE BORROWED WEDDING

(Copyright, 1921, by W. Werner)

THE EVENING STORY— ....

Young girl clerks at Hodkgins & Wilder's might come and young girl clerks might go, but Miss Annie Meeker, head saleswoman at the lingerie counter, showed on goods forever. With the thoughtlessness of youth, the young girl clerks made a lot of mild fun of her behind her back. Fun of her prim, neat English, free from touches of slang—like her prim, neat hair, that, no matter how universally wave or pompadour or earbun were in vogue, pursued its undeviating way; fun of the high, broad-toed, low-heeled shoes she wore; her thickset, "absurdly long" dress skirts; her high-necked waists—with old-fashioned rushing at throat and wrist like a fluted chalk line.

"The kind of woman born middle-aged," was Zetta Thomas's bon mot, that, no matter how often repeated, never failed to produce a ripple of merriment, while wnen the day Sallie Perkins whispered to Evelyn Martin, "Sal, wouldn't Meeker look cute in socks?" there was such an explosion of giggles they were all reprimanded by the floorwalker.

And not one of them guessed how young at heart this "born middle-aged" woman really was. They never dreamed that when her eyes rested upon a laughing, chattering group of their merry selves, instead of adversely criticizing them, she was secretly envying their youth and spontaneity and colorfulness. For another one of Miss Annie Meeker's characteristics was extreme shyness that made it impossible for her to draw aside the veil of reserve.

Perhaps it was because of her own shy nature she was so patient with a new little clerk, Hazel Edwards, a starled-eyed country girl, who had been living in the city only a few weeks when she came to work at Hodgkins & Wilder's. Perhaps Annie Meeker realized that three-fourths of the girl's awkwardness, slowness and apparent stupidity was from her bashfulness. At all events, her interest in the little clerk, the infinite pains she took to show her over and over, the words of encouragement spoken whenever time permitted, worked a marvelous transformation in the raw recruit and won for the head of the department adoring devotion. For the first time in her colorless life Miss Annie Meeker was pedestaled as a divinity in a worshiping girl heart.

But not even to Miss Meeker could Hazel Edwards tell her shy secret. Instead, when asked if she had felt homesick in the big strange city, the delicate wild rose pink of the little country girl's cheeks had flamed a poppy red.

"Not since—that is—I mean, not after—the first week," she stammered.

In her panic of bashfulness she had almost let the secret out; had come within an ace of saying, "Not since Tom Anderson came up to the city, too."

And at that time Hazel did not absolutely know that he had come on her account. For Tom's oldest brother, who had lost his wife the year before, had sold his ranch and rented a house in town next door to his mother's, so she could have an eye on his two children. With Larry at hand to look after family business matters—for his mother to call on in any emergency—Tom felt free to leave. There were so many more opportunities in a city, he told Hazel, for a man to forge ahead.

But when, after two discouraging months of only temporary jobs, Tom got permanent employment at the Creighton Iron works and started in taking her to the park, the beach, across the bay every pleasant Sunday, while they went to the movies together two and three evenings a week, there could be no longer any doubt of his intentions.

Still, although she longed to take dear Miss Meeker into her confidence, Hazel could not bring herself to tell—until the inevitable happened—hastened by an unexpected raise in Tom's wages. Then, as there was no reason for the young people waiting to put their day dream of happiness into action, Hazel promised to leave Hodgkins & Wilders the first of the month and be married ten days later. And after all Miss Meeker's kindness she felt it would be basest ingratitude to walk off without any explanation.

It was on the street corner, waiting for their cars that the first opportunity to speak presented itself and Hazel breathlessly and blushingly poured out the whole story.

The surprise of it, for the moment, struck Miss Annie Meeker speechless. And for shy Hazel, taking the speechlessness, the monosyllabic utterances that jerked out afterward, for disapproval, could hardly go on and ask what she had set her heart on—that Miss Meeker would come to the wedding.

"Not really a wedding after all," she concluded with a wistful sigh. "Just being married. Tom's brother will be up for it, but I haven't any own folks nearer than second cousins, and a big, strange church seems so lonesome and scary anyhow that I feel I must have a woman friend with me, and I thought maybe—that is, if you wouldn't mind——"

And because Miss Meeker was so touched at being wanted, her consent was almost curt, and as she hurried to the car poor Hazel turned away, wishing she had not asked her.

"She doesn't care," thought the girl, tears springing in her eyes. "Weddings don't interest her."

But Miss Meeker was not only interested, she was thrilled. And she carried the radiant thought of Hazel and Tom with her, the dear, sweet, beautiful romance of youth unfolding into bloom like a bright, happy flower some one had given her to take home. And when she entered the dark, cold, little bungalow where she lived alone and cooked and ate her dinner, washed up her dishes, she still thrilled; the fragrance of the flower still filled her heart.

For economy Miss Meeker generally sat in the fireless dining room, but that evening she simply had to have a fire in the parlor grate. And as the bright flames lighted up the pretty room the shining thought darted through her mind what a dear place it would be for a home wedding.

So it came about that the first of the month, the morning after Hazel Edwards left the store, the young girl clerks at the lingerie counter were electrifide by Miss Meeker inviting them all to "a wedding at my house the afternoon of Saturday week."

"Your wed-ding!" gasped Zetta Thomas, too dumfounded to be polite.

"No," smiled Miss Annie Meeker, "it doesn't belong to me. I've just borrowed it."

In the ten days of planning and preparing between little Miss Meeker had the happiest time of her life. She got up early, she sat up late, and its to be hoped the recording angel turned away at the reprehensible things that strictly brought up Miss Annie did on the one free Sunday at her disposal.

It was a simple wedding. Tom's oldest brother, Larry, the five young girl clerks from the store, with their respective five "best beaux," the minister and his wife were the only guests. But never had there been an "own" wedding dearer or sweeter, more full of the love and joy taken in it than Miss Meeker's borrowed wedding.

She had done all the decorating herself, her loving fingers even fashioning the wedding bell of ferns and pink carnations hung in the bay window, where the ceremony too kplace. She had made the superb wedding supper. Most wonderful of all, the big, beautiful exquisitely frosted wedding cake was the creation of her magic genius, including the dressing of the little kewpie bridal couple standing beaming side by each in the center of the resplendent icing.

A supply of rise to fling at the departing bride and groom, an old shoe to follow after, was all provided. Miss Meeker, "born middle-aged," had not forgotten one young bit of happy foolishness. And it was Miss Meeker who caught the bride's bouquet.

Smiling, she turned to give it to the nearest young girl clerk, but Tom's oldest brother, Larry, who had got the ring in the wedding cake, would not let her, declaring it broke the charm when you attempted to hand on your luck.

"I have been reading your manuscript, my dear lady," said a pompous publisher to an aspiring novice, "and there is much in it. I think that it is very good. But there are some parts that are vague. Now, you should always write so that the most ignorant can understand." The youthful authoress wished to show herself ready to accept advice, and she replied: "Oh, yes, I'm sure, but tell me what are the parts that have given you trouble?"

RED LETTER DAY

The Men's Bible class is planning to make next Sunday a "red letter day" at the city hall. Their teacher, Keith L. Brook, who has been absent several Sundays on account of sickness, is expected to be able to lead the class.

The dental quartet, Dr. C. R. Lusby, Dr. P. O. Lucas, Paul Butterfield and Frank Butterfield will take part in a special program of music.

The members of the class are live, wide-awake men with a desire to make this organization a power for good in Glendale and the increasing attendance each Sunday is an indication that it is soon going to be a realization.

The spots on a man's reputation look about ten times larger to others than to himself.

PLANS FOR WATER FOR WOODLANDS DISCUSSED

Committee Meets With City Council, Proposing Purchase of Will

The Verdugo Woodlands committee, representing the property owners and residents of Verdugo Woodlands met with the city council Wednesday relative to taking over by the city of a certain well in that district and the assuming of the obligation to supply water to that section.

According to the various speakers at the meeting the city entered into a contract with George Hanna, owner of the lands in Verdugo Woodlands for which the F. P. Newport company is acting as sales agent, whereby the city would take over a well on that property in consideration for which they would sink other wells and assume the duty of supplying the district with water.

At the time of making the contract a bond issue to carry out the agreement was presented to the voters of Glendale and defeated. Later another bond issue for the same proposition was presented and carried but on account of the war and financial conditions created by the war it was unable for the city to sell these bonds. After three years the city is in a position to carry out the contract.

The committee from the Verdugo Woodlands district stated at the meeting Wednesday that a new plan was being projected whereby the property owners of the district would purchase this well for a stated sum.

BIBLE SOCIETY TELLS POLICY

To Continue Issuing Book in All Languages of the World

NEW YORK, Feb. 24. — The change that has been announced in the manufacturing policy of the American Bible Society seems to have been misunderstood in some quarters and the officers of the society have issued the following statement:

The American Bible Society, contrary to certain reports has not given up its publishing business in which it has been engaged for more than 100 years, and has had no thought of so doing. It will continue as a publishing house, issuing the Scriptures in more than 150 languages and dialects, having its work done through various printing concerns. It will continue to control its own plates, so as to preserve the accuracy of its versions for which it has received recognition and acknowledgement.

This change of policy in its printing program has been dictated by the fact, that the society is convinced that it can do its printing more economically elsewhere than it can by conducting its own printing establishment.

There will be an actual increase in the society's output and this change of policy marks a distinct advance and is in no sense a retrenchment in its program of Scripture publication.

The society has no thought of moving its headquarters from New York. Its executive offices continue in the Bible House, Astor Place, New York City. The officers of the society are: Churchill H. Cutting, president; William I. Haven and Frank H. Mann, general secretaries; Gilbert Darlington, treasurer.

"How far have you studied English, John?" inquired Miss Cross, the new governess, as she and John and sundry sisters settled down together.

"Just as far as my history book is dirty, Miss Cross," said John.

If it's a good offer it will pay to make it through the classified advertising columns.

RICHES

There is no glory like unselfishness,
Nor greater glory king has ever had,
There is no dream or memory can bless
Like that of some worn, weary soul made glad.
There is no crown like that one Kindness wears,
However jewel-studded or gem-pearled,
Alone that soul is great that nobly shares
The struggles and the sorrows of the world.

Place has no glory in it, nor has Power,
Bubbles and baubles both, enduring not,
To burst and vanish in a passing hour,
Time's playthings, cherished lightly and forgot
No genius, wisdom, majesty or art
With all the gifts of each, once glorifies
This world of ours as does a kindly heart—
Light has no radiance like to loving eyes.

Fame riches, fortune—these are common things,
And tawdry, cheap, despised and valueless,
Beside the throbbing heart of love that brings
The soul in sorrow back to happiness
Who brings to empty hearts the smile and song,
Who fires with courage the faint souls of men
To rise and struggle onward and be strong,
Aye, he has made the dead to live again.

PURELY PERSONAL

Dr. Munson is an eye, ear, nose and throat doctor there and Mrs. Munson is an attorney. They expect to motor to Riverside and Santa Barbara this week-end.

Carol Mae Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Evans of 1214 South Mariposa street, who has been absent from her studies in the Acacia street school, is now able to be up and about the house and will probably be well enough to go back to her classes in a few days.

LONG AND SHORT PRUNING ANALYZED BY EXPERT

George P. Weldon Diagrams the Results of Cutting

Recently in order that some comparative figures might be secured, two trees of about equal size—one which had been pruned short for two years, and one which had been pruned long for two years—were pruned in a similar manner for the third consecutive season, says George P. Weldon in Orchard and Farm.

The different points considered were: (1) Time occupied in pruning each tree; (2) Number of cuts in the pruning of each tree; (3) Weight of wood removed from each tree, and (4) Condition of the buds from each tree. The results are indicated in the accompanying table.

The superior condition of the buds upon the long-pruned tree was apparent at a glance, as they were borne upon well-hardened wood. The buds on the short-pruned tree were upon succulent growth.

These data are of especial interest in view of the statement by many orchardists that they could not afford the time required to thin out branches under the long-pruning system.

No claim is made, however, that this one isolated case is a criterion for all cases; in fact under some conditions the results might be reversed. However, it is probable that similar results would be encountered under most average conditions.

Points Observed

1—Time required for pruning: short, 14 minutes, long, 8 minutes.

2—Number of cuts: short, 285; long, 116.

3—Weight of wood removed: short, 51½ lbs.; long, 31½ lbs.

4—Condition of buds: short—small, sickly, lacking in vigor; long—large, plump and vigorous.

POSTPONE MEETING

Members of the Henrietta Bancroft group of the Women's Home Missionary society of the First Methodist church who were to have met Wednesday afternoon, postponed that gathering until today at 2:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. T. L. Brown, 213 North Louise street, where they did work for the Frances de Pauw school.

Mrs. Adams of Massachusetts, has arrived in the city to visit her sister, Mrs. F. S. Webster of Verdugo avenue. She will remain several weeks.

AIR IS CLUTTERED BY BROADCASTING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—The tremendous development of radio service and the uses to which it is being put have compelled the government to take steps to regulate the use of the air. Radio broadcasting has become so common a practice not only by profession and commercial concerns, but by amateurs, that the official radio service is being seriously interferred with. Practically everything may now be handled by radio and the air is constantly cluttered with all sorts of communications from those of high official character by the government market quotations, crop estimates, weather forecasts, down to lectures, sermons, concerts, announcements of stolen property and the common garden variety of gossip.

Mrs. Smith was on her first ocean voyage.

"What's that down there?" she asked of the captain.

"That's the steerage, madam," he replied.

"Really!" exclaimed the woman in surprise; "and does it take all those people to make the boat go straight?"
